Police Quiet UW Students, Hippies

Brutality Charged by Protesters

MADISON (AP) — Hundreds of University of Wisconsin students erected flaming street barricades early today in sympathy with hippies whose attempts to hold a block dance were smashed by police using clubs and irritant gas.

The students poured out of dormitories and fraternity houses following two nights of battle between the hippies and the police and surged into the business area, where for several hours they defied efforts to disperse them.

More than 1,000 young persons were involved before scattered disorders subsided. The throngs also included hippies and scores of their fellow student residents of an off-campus neighborhood known as the Mifflin Street hippie haven.

The weekend of disorder resulted in about 80 arrests. Two of those detained were city aldermen, Paul Soglin and Eugene Parks. Soglin, 24, accused the police of shearing off his long hair before he was freed on bond.

Tries to Intervene

Soglin, a university student known as "the hippie alderman," said he was arrested when he tried to intervene between the police and hippies and declared:

"The brutality that I saw on the part of the police made Chicago and past demonstrations in Madison look like panty raids."

Nearly two hours after midnight, Mayor William Dyke, who toured the troubled areas in a police car, described the city of 175,000 as relatively quiet. But he said he would have to consider ordering a curfew to try to head off any further outbursts.

Street Dance

The trouble began Saturday when police began breaking up barricades which residents of a Mifflin Street hippie neighborhood had used to mark the site of a planned street dance several blocks from the University of Wisconsin campus. The police said the dance would block traffic.

Police, having been pelted with occasional eggs and empty soft drink cans during an hour-long standoff, threatened to use gas to disperse the group. The announcement was greeted by a storm of rocks, bricks and bottles.

Police waded in, nightsticks flailing, and began making arrests. Some officers threw bricks back at the crowd. When police moved back, and the gas blew away, hippies quickly rebuilt their barricades.

Irritant Gas

A Sunday peace was shattered when officers waded into an afternoon gathering of about 300 young residents of the Mifflin Street neighborhood. Arrests resumed, most for unlawful assembly.

Authorities again used the irritant gas which they called "pepper gas."

Sunday night, the Mifflin Street residents moved out of their gas-choked neighborhood and began picketing the Dane County jail to protest police actions.

The throng swelled to more than 1,000 when the students joined forces with the Mifflin Street residents.

As more clouds of the gas rolled down streets—some of it from canisters and some ejected from containers carried by police—hundreds of students

War Games

DAU TIENG, Vietnam (AP) —A U.S battalion commander who charged competitive points against platoons losing men in combat says he dropped this part of the program after learning his men were opposed to it.

Lt. Col James T. Bradley, a 40-year-old Korean War veteran from Arlington, Va., started the competition three weeks ago. He said it was designed to prevent needless casualties among his men, some of whom just weren't being alert."

Platoons of the 25th Infantry Division's 1st Battalion, 27th Infantry were awarded points for enemy troops killed, weapons captured and rice caches discovered. Platoons that suffered battle casualties lost points. The winning platoons received two or three days off at a rest center.

One of Bradley's infantrymen who didn't think much of the contest, especially the points deducted for casualties, wrote home:

"The morale is low enough without a stupid contest that only shows us what little is thought of what we're already doing. We don't need to be playing games in a combat zone...This contest has shown us what pawns we are. I wouldn't like to think that because one of my buddies gets killed it only means we lose points."

Bradley said anyone who felt that way missed what he wanted to emphasize—stay alert and live.

Despite the constant danger, Bradley said, he thinks combat troops sometimes get careless. They become somewhat complacent after being in Vietnam for a while," he said. "They get exposed to combat, survive without injury and become a little bit more careless."

The battalion's operations officer, Maj. Jerry Holliday of Memphis, Tenn., said the point deduction system was decided on after one company had constant mishaps with booby traps in the enemy-infested Bo Loi Woods and Michelin rubber plantation northwest of Saigon, where the battalion operates.

"They were stumbling over booby traps on a daily basis," Holliday said. "They suffered something like nine casualties in two or three days. It was pure carelessness.

"The program was almost specifically designed to prevent that, to make the platoon leader, the platoon sergeant, the squad leader make their men be more careful. The whole name of the game was to keep the men from making needless mistakes."

Although Bradley stopped deducting points for American casualties, he's still giving them for kills and captures.

He said the program is temporary and will run for a week more, but he may try it again in three months if he feels it is needed then.

Fortas Denies Wrongdoing in Money Offer From Ex-Client

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Abe Fortas received a $20,000 fee from the family of industrialist Louis E. Wolfson three months after he was seated on the Supreme Court and did not return the money until 11 months later, according to Life magazine.

Fortas confirmed Sunday, that he was offered and considered a fee but flatly denied that he accepted or that he stepped in to help Wolfson, a former client who went to jail last month on a federal securities law conviction.

The justice said he returned the fee, "tendered" in 1966, "with my thanks." His statement, issued at the court after he had read an advance copy of the Life article, did not say how large the fee was or when he returned it.

Life's account was that the Wolfson Family Foundation, a tax-free charitable organization set up by Wolfson and his brothers, paid Fortas $20,000 in January 1966, three months after he was sworn in as an associate justice.

The article, by William Lambert, said Fortas returned the money in December 1966, three months after the financial tycoon and his longtime business associate, Elkin Gerbert, had been indicted on charges of selling a large block of unregistered stock in a company Wolfson and Gerbert controlled.

Life said "whatever services he may or may not have rendered to the foundation, Justice Fortas' name was being dropped in strategic places by Wolfson and his business associate, Elkin Gerbert, in their effort to stay out of prison."

The Justice Department, meanwhile, said it "is aware of the contents of the article in Life magazine and currently has the matter under consideration."

Fortas' statement, issued two hours after he had driven to the court on an otherwise quiet Sunday, began: "I have not accepted any fee or emolument from Mr. Wolfson or the Wolfson Family Foundation or any related person or group."

Fortas went on to say he met Wolfson in 1965, before going on the Court, after a Wolfson company had retained his old law firm.

The justice said the foundation offered the fee "in the hope that I would find time and could undertake, consistently with my court obligations, research functions, studies and writings connected with the work of the foundation."

He added: "Concluding that I could not undertake the assignment, I returned the fee with my thanks."

Fortas said that at no time since he became a justice did he give Wolfson or any of his family, associates, foundations or interests any legal advice or services.

The statement said the foundation is engaged in "significant and commendable work" in the field of harmonious racial and religious relations.

Wolfson Fortas

Life's version said that Fortas flew down to Wolfson's horse-breeding farm near Ocala, Fla., in June 1966 and was his guest when the Securities and Exchange Commission's "long-feared investigation finally came to public attention."

The magazine also said Wolfson had told Alexander Rittmaster, a business associate, in July that Fortas was "furious" because the SEC "had reneged on a pledge to give the Wolfson group another hearing."

And, Life said, Gerbert had reassured Rittmaster "there was no need to worry, that Fortas had been at the horse farm to discuss the SEC matter and that it was to be taken care of."

Rittmaster, named a codefendant, testified for the government.

The magazine said "it is not easy to pin down the exact extent of the Wolfson-Fortas relationship, nor has Life uncovered evidence making possible a charge that Wolfson hired Fortas to fix his case."

Last year President Johnson nominated Fortas to succeed Earl Warren as chief justice. The Senate Judiciary Committee received testimony that while on the court Fortas had accepted $15,000 to conduct a summer seminar at the American University law school.

The nomination eventually was withdrawn as Fortas faced obvious defeat at the hands of senators who criticized either his conduct or the court's liberal stance.

Pressure in Congress

President Wants to Sell Idea Troop Pullouts Are Unwise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, under increasing congressional pressure for a quick start in some U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam, evidently has begun a campaign to convince the public such a move is inadvisible at this time.

Following demands for some sort of troop pullback from two leading Republican senators late last week, top administration officials spent the weekend explaining Nixon's position.

In talks with reporters over the weekend, White House officials said the President has a carefully worked out strategy that he feels still shows sign of getting somewhere and would be disrupted by starting troop withdrawals now.

Nixon's argument against any immediate withdrawal rests primarily on these points, as defined by the White House officials:

1. There has been some progress in bargaining with the Communists at the Paris Peace talks, although not in terms of moving toward agreement on ending the war.

2. Nixon is planning some new moves with respect to Vietnam which he will take when he considers the time is right.

3. South Vietnam has been gaining steadily in both military and political strength for months now and its capacity to assume more of the war later will allow Nixon to withdraw some U.S. troops in the months ahead if he chooses to do so. He has no deadline, however, for withdrawal.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird also outlined the administration's position for a cutback in the American fighting force in a Saturday news conference at Warrenton, Va.

He said if any of these three positions are met then a withdrawal could begin:

1. Agreement on mutual withdrawal of U.S. and North Vietnamese troops.

2. Sufficient improvement of South Vietnamese forces so they can take over a major part of the fighting.

3. The level of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese activity is "substantially reduced" in South Vietnam.

Until Saturday, Laird had always declined to discuss the conditions for troop withdrawals. But his outlining of the points plus the weekend sessions the White House officials had with newsmen indicated Nixon was concerned with the public effect of the recent demands for a quick beginning of the troop withdrawals.

Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, the No. 2 Republican in the Senate, Friday called for the return home of a substantial block of U.S. troops as a means of inducing North Vietnam to begin serious bargaining in Paris.

A day earlier Sen. George Aiken of Vermont, top Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, had called on the Nixon administration to begin pulling forces out.

There have been other calls over the last several months for a troop cutback.

White House officials said, however, President Nixon is determined to stick to his own plan.

Although administration officials have seemed hard pressed to strike an optimistic note about the Paris talks, the administration idea seems to be not to appear discouraged about the situation.

This apparently is why the evidence cited by White House sources dealt with the question

Kohler Corp. Involved

Lawsuits to Cost Billions of Dollars?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of the nation's largest makers of plumbing fixtures face the possible loss of billions of dollars from damage suits by customers who bought their equipment at what a federal grand jury found were illegally fixed prices.

Nearly every state and numerous cities already have filed suits seeking treble damages against the three firms convicted of criminal price fixing last week and 12 other companies who earlier pleaded no contest to the charges, according to a Justice Department official.

Besides the state and local governments, other major purchasers of plumbing fixtures — building contractors and even individual homeowners—are expected to file suits, the official added.

Under federal law, those found guilty of criminal violations of antitrust acts are liable, if convicted in subsequent civil suits, for treble damagee.

The prospect for the mammoth damages arose Friday when a federal jury in Pittsburgh found the Borg Warner Corp., of Chicago; American Standard Corp., New York; and the Kohler Corp., Kohler, Wis., guilty of illegally raising and pre-setting the price for bathtubs and other bathroom fixtures.

Three officials of the firms also were found quilty.

The Justice Department prosecutor for the case, John C. Fricano, said "With the guilty verdict, they don't have to prove their case."

The 15 companies and eight officials were accused in federal indictments Oct. 6, 1966 with fixing the prices on all fixtures they sold between September 1962 and 1966.

The government said the total sales amounted to $1 billion or 98 per cent of the enameled cast iron plumbing fixtures and 80 per cent of the vitreous china plumbing fixtures sold in this country during the period.

The guilty verdict was returned Friday, and U.S. Dist. Court Judge Louis Rosenberg ordered a pre-sentencing investigation before setting penalties.

'Color Is No Excuse'—Justice Marshall

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The first Negro member of the U.S. Supreme Court says black militants who defy the law should be made to face the consequences.

"Anarchy is anarchy," Justice Thurgood Marshall said Sunday, "and it makes no difference who practices it, it is bad; it is punishable and it should be punished."

Marshall spoke at the centennial celebration of predominantly Negro Dillard University.

"You can't use color for an excuse for not doing what you should be doing," he declared.

"Race is not an excuse for not keeping up your house properly nor is race an excuse for not keeping your children in school, even though they may still be segregated."

Marshall said he realized that "so far as race problems and minority rights go, the problems are not yet solved and I have no idea when they will be, but there has been some progress."

"The seeds are here," he added. "But nothing will be settled with guns, firebombs or rocks. The country can't survive if the perpetrators go unpunished. It's that simple."

Urging Negroes to reject black militant leadership, Marshall said:

"We should stand up and say, 'Look, man, you do what you want to do and I'll do what I want to do. But don't tell me I have to do what you want me to do just because you said it."

The associate justice called for leadership through education and said student demanding black studies and African culture should not discard other studies and cultures.

"You are not going to compete in the world until you have training exactly like everyone else, and, hopefully, better," he said. "Because when you're a Negro, you've got to be better."

Knit it yourself

Favorite Fun Sweater

Everyone has a favorite sweater that gets worn the most. It's comfortable, holds its shape and is smart enough to wear on the endless errands of today's modern woman. The big collar can be turned up when it is chilly, there are no buttonholes to make, and it has raglan sleeves for an easy fit. The smart tab-trimmed pocket is large enough to be practical, as well as pretty. Knit it from 4-ply knitting worsted or synthetic and if you can do the simplest crochet stitch, the finishing will be a cincy.

Don't overlook the possibilities of this design. The model is made in medium blue, the nation's favorite color but imagine it as a topper for your favorite basic sheath or to wear with a straight knit skirt and blouse for a chic suit, especially if you're a machine knitter. Sizes 8-16 (34-42 inches) are all included in each pattern.

To order, Hand Knit-514 Casual Raglan Jacket, send $1 in currency, check or money order to Lois Holmes of California, (Post-Crescent), Box 6002, Inglewood, Calif. 90302.

Please print your name, address, zip code and pattern numbers plainly. Send 15 cents for each pattern for first-class mail and special handling, or 25 cents each for air mail.

DEAR MRS. HOLMES: Here are two tips that may be of help to someone. The first one is in making a cardigan front and the pattern says "reversing all shaping." I work both halves of the front at the same time on 14-inch needles. You can see from the first half exactly what to do on the second. It also insures the same number of rows on both pieces.

The second tip is this: I like to baste my sweaters together and try them on before the final finishing. However, I have found it impossible on raglans with the holders at the neckline, until I began using yarn as a holder. I thread a tapestry needle with a double stand of yarn and run it through the stitches, then tie the yarn. It's also much easier to work "around" those stitches on yarn, when making a sweater from the neck down.—Maryellen McW.

Dear Maryellen: I heartily agree with your tips. The first one is used on a widespread basis by many "Knit Wits" of long standing. Sleeves, as well as fronts, can be made at the same time, too. Because we are so knitting-machine oriented, we want everything to be exactly row for row. One of my close friends uses a row counter that slips on her needle. She turns the counter for each row worked.

About the second tip. We use this all the time, but because we use knitting machines so much, we zip, zip a few rows of contrast color yarn on at the beg. and end many times and have someting to really get hold of.

Don't forget to pass on some of the good, old standby hints, because there are many ladies just beginning to take up knitting as a hobby.

High School Dropout U.S. Mother of the Year

By RACHEL EBELE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Evelyn LeTourneau, 68, who founded a college in Texas but never finished her sophomore year in high school, Saturday was named U.S. Mother of the Year.

The white-haired mother of five broke into tears when she was selected over 51 other contestants from the 50 states, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia.

Founded Camp, Ranches

Mrs. LeTourneau, wife of industrialist-inventor Robert LeTourneau, has lived in Longview, Tex., since 1946, the same year she established the LeTourneau Institute of Technology. The 735- student school is now called LeTourneau Christian College.

Officials of the 34-year-old contest said Mrs. LeTourneau was chosen as U.S. Mother because she was a mother not only to her children, but to youngsters at the Winona Bible Camp in Indiana, which she founded in 1938, at seven boys ranches she started across the country, and at the college, where until 1961 she lived on campus with her husband and was affectionately called "mom" by the students.

Chided Dissidents

Three of her sons—Richard, 44; Roy, 40, and Ted, 37—live in Longview. The youngest son, Ben, 35, attends Texas A&M. Her only daughter, Louise Dick, 49, is a housewife in Moline, Ill.

"An awful lot of mothers aren't being mothers to their children," Mrs. LeTourneau said at the ceremony. She chided student dissidents, saying "if they were capable of running a college they wouldn't be going to school."

Cornell University in Throes of 'New Order'

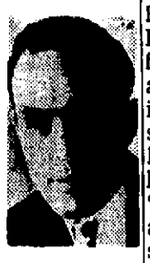

Administration Program Seen Inviting Student Agitators and the Unqualified

Y ROWLAND EVANS AND OBERT NOVAK

ITHACA, N. Y. — Well before ornell University's administra-on bowed to armed black ilitants, the shape of the ming New Order here had come frighteningly clear.

Evans

Militant black students were owing up for classes they had ot registered in, taking seats in e rear, and carefully jotting own the professor's words. The essage to the faculty mem-ers: any remark that might in the slightest way offend Negro sensibilities could only invite trouble.

Furthermore, such intrusions on academic freedom have been tolerated by President James A. Perkins. In an interview here, Perkins described to us a conflict between "social justice" and "Academic freedom," adding that he was "a mugwump" straddling the two positions. However, Perkins continued, he had told faculty members they "could not use the cloak of academic freedom" to cover up statements which might anger black students.

Thus, when the Perkins administration last week capitulated to black demands at gunpoint, the minority of professors dedicated to academic freedom — most of them in the government and history departments — determined they had no place in Cornell's New Order. They reasoned that the black militants always could force the administration to surrender when classroom content was at issue.

Fear for Academic Freedom

Even more disturbing to them is the feeling that Cornell is no isolated catastrophe. The professors fleeing from here are haunted by the fear that the tradition of academic freedom may be dying in America and that Cornell is but the outrider of that calamity.

Certainly, Cornell is about to undergo drastic change. The professors who have resigned or are likely to resign are among the university's most respected scholars and teachers (such as government professor Walter Berns, winner of this year's teaching award). Those students on both graduate and undergraduate levels who were attracted here by such teachers are seeking to transfer for the next term. Moreover, with the notoriety it has now achieved, Cornell will henceforth be vastly more attractive to the student agitator than to the serious student.

Nor does this seem repugnant to either the administration or a majority of the faculty. Perkins is actively supporting the self-proclaimed "constitutional convention" of faculty and students which began meeting in Barton Hall after the bloodless black insurrection. This effort to "restructure" the university is aimed at a New Order where students help decide what is taught and how it is taught.

It is no wonder, then, that an estimated 90 per cent of the student body, long ago freed from non-academic discipline, rejoice in the disintegration of established authority. More surprising is the corresponding euphoria within a majority of the faculty. Catching the spirit of the times, English and anthropology professors have transformed themselves from "departments" to "communes".

But the radicalization of Cornell was underway at least a year ago when the university administration implicitly supported the right of students to censor classroom teachings. When black militants resorted to force over the lectures of an economics professor, Dean Stuart M. Brown, Jr. condoned their protests and condemned the professor's claims of superiority for Western civilizations as "a special and specially obvious case of the racism which black people find throughout the entire white community.

Simultaneous with this limitation on academic freedom, the Perkins administration relaxed traditional standards in accreditation of radical-oriented courses — promoting a course now being taught for credit in black ideology.

Disregard Content

In so doing, it conveniently disregarded its content, largely Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) and Black Panther propaganda, and its instructor, SNCC militant Cleveland Sellers who has no college degree or other academic qualifications.

Indeed, the Afro-American Center to begin classes here next term will play a major role in the New Order at Cornell with black students helping to decide which instructors and courses meet the standard of "relevance" Cornell's white and black radicals envision this center as a radical academy, drawing slum children from the ghetto and sending back trained agitators.

Beyond this, the Students from a Democratic Society (SDS) here now demands that half of Cornell's freshman admissions go to white and black "working class" children — a plan that looks so ludicrous that even the Barton Hall assembly and President Perkins deride it. But it is not that far from today's reality. Concerned faculty members told us that the overeager recruitment of unqualified black students already has forced down Cornell's general academic level.

Among that splinter of faculty members heartsick over the revolution here, there are three groups: the pessimists believe the tragic events foretell the death of liberal education nationally; the centrists feel Cornell is dead but hope persists elsewhere; the optimists — a very few of them — are staying in hopes that Cornell will yet come to its senses. But even those optimists are certain that Cornell's resurrection depends upon the fall of Perkins, an event which now seems most unlikely.

Polyarteritis Is Odd Disease to Diagnose

y George C. Thosteson, M. D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please omment on polyarteritis, auses, treatment, cure if any. - C. B.

Polyarteritis is a strange disrder of the arteries — I call it strange" because we have no ood idea how often it occurs, nd because it may have severl causes, and because it manists itself in several ways.

In short, it is hard to diagose, hard to treat — and rustrating to the patient.

In half or more of the cases, ever, abdominal pain, high lood pressure, weakness, eight loss, albumin in the rine, and a high white cell ount are among the symptoms.

So many other things can ause these same symptoms iat a physician — wisely — oks for other causes first. But hen the more obvious causes en't found, it makes sense to onsider arteritis. The proof can e obtained by studying the ood vessels in a muscle biopsy - a tiny bit of muscle tissue.

(Polyarteritis is also called criarteritis nodosum, because iere may be tender lumps ong an involved artery. There also temporal arteritis, about hich I am sometimes asked; ie "poly" form merely means iat several or many arteries e involved in various organs.) Infection settling in artery alls (medium or small) is one ause of the disease. The reptococcus germ sometimes found, and the ailment can be part of rheumatic fever. But iere are other causes, too: ensitivity to some drug, alleric reactions.

As to treatment, one cannot always promise a cure. Mild cases abate without any special treatment. In more severe cases, the steroids (cortisone and derivatives) are often most effective and promising — but not in all. Treatment may have to be continued over a long period, since recurrence depends largely on the severity and extent of the disorder, for the condition may manifest itself in various organs — skin, muscle, lung, kidneys, heart.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We hear that carrot juice is a good source of vitamin A. Is it safe or good to drink it daily? — Mrs. C. S.

Carrots (and the juice) contain carotene, which the body turns into vitamin A. It's a good source. But I don't see any need for drinking it every day. It is possible, in time, to get too much of it. One sign is when the skin begins to turn yellow. I don't suppose that a small glass per day would harm anyone, but don't go overboard.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a friend who swears that a cat can draw the breath from a baby. I say he is a dum-dum to believe such hogwash. What do you say? — Mrs. E. M.

I say he's totally wrong — but I doubt if it's worth the trouble arguing with people who absorb such ideas. The more facts you give them, the more they ignore facts.

2 Bowl-O-Rama Divisions Have New Pace-Setters

Donna Sipple, Darrell Heling Take Over

BY JIM HARP
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Keglers from Bonduel and St. Cloud rolled into lead positions in men's Class B and women's Class A in action during the Bowl-O-Rama, sponsored by The Post-Crescent, at the 41 Bowl Sunday.

Darrell Heling, of Bonduel, slammed a 910 count to take over the men's Class B lead and Donna Sipple, St. Cloud, jolted a 902 total to grab the top spot in women's Class A.

Heling moved four pins ahead of former leader, Mel Hanson, of Appleton. Heling started with a 197 game, blasted a 230 in his second line and followed with a 193 before slipping to a 178 in his last effort.

Heling carries 28 pins handicap per game for a 112 total to go with his 798 scratch.

Leads By 44 Pins

Donna Sipple slammed a 750 scratch to go with her 152 pins of handicap to lead the Class A group by 44 pins. After starting with a 168 game, Donna socked a 213, then 169 and finished strong with a 200 count. She had 19 strikes in the four games, including seven in her second line and six in her fourth.

Heling smacked 22 strikes in the four games and had four blows in his 230 game. Heling had eight strikes.

In men's Class A, the top change saw Marlyn Nelson of Menasha go into sixth plac with a 797 scratch and 88 pins for an 885. He hit 215 and 209 scratch in his first two games.

Dan Thurke, Fond du Lac, had 863 in men's Class A and Alois Wilz, Menasha, slammed a 860.

Other changes in Class B for the men keglers saw Warren Engel, of Brillion, hit a 868 total to move into the No. 8 spot. Engel had 716 scratch and carried a handicap of 152. John Dunphy, of Green Bay, had 866 for 10th place and Bob Zellner, also of Green Bay, had 864.

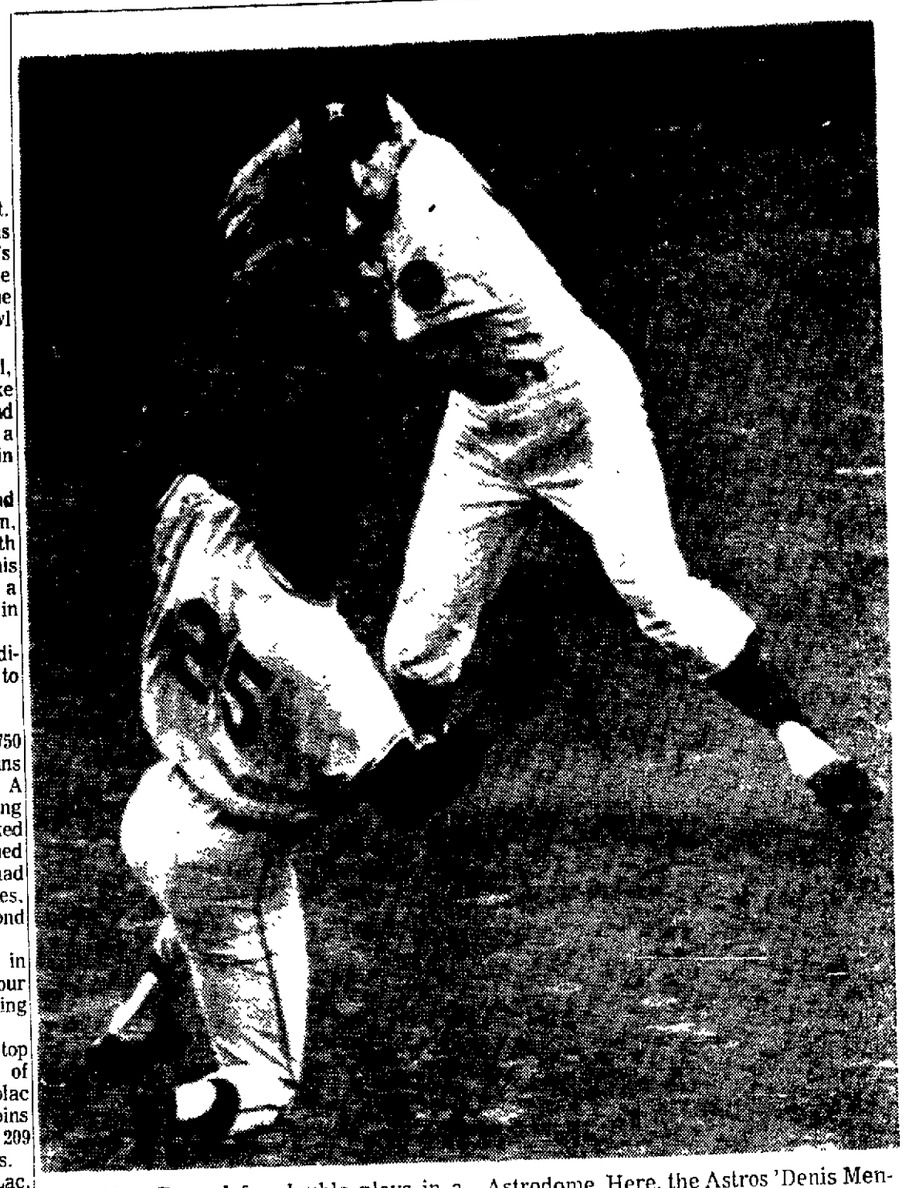

In addition to Donna Sipple taking the lead in women's Class A, Ronda Radtke, Marion, took over the sixth position with a 835 count that included 695 scratch. Appleton's Pat Lutz had 754 scratch and finished with 826 for ninth place.

In Women's Class B, Darlene Techlin, Appleton, had 843 to go into sixth place. She hit 651 scratch and got off to a booming start by hitting a 220 game. With her 48 pins handicap per game this gave her a 268 total to win the women's squad prize on the 4 p.m. shift.

Lester Jacobs, Appleton, won the men's prize at 4 p.m. with a 232 game and 35 handicap for a 267.

Squad prize winners at 2 p.m. Sunday included Pat Lutz with a 212 scratch and 18 handicap for 230 and Jerry Eastman, Appleton, with 247 scratch and 19 handicap for 266.

Action in the Bowl-O-Rama continued Tuesday night at the 41 Bowl, with 10 days of competition remaining.

A New Record for double plays in a single National League game was established Sunday, as the Houston Astros completed seven twin killings in a 9-inning 3-1 win over San Francisco in the Astrodome .Here, the Astros 'Denis Menke fires the ball to first base after forcing the Giants' Bobby Bonds at second to complete the seventh and game-ending DP. Eddy Stars as Hurler, Hitter

Foxes Win Sixth Straight

BY RON WITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The rampaging Appleton Foxes stretched their season-opening winning streak to six games in the Midwest League Sunday afternoon, as they downed the Quincy Cubs at Goodland Field, 6-4, behind the pitching and hitting of Don Eddy

By completing their 2-game sweep of the Cubs, Appleton hiked its ML leadership to two games over second place Clinton. The Foxes begin a 4-day road trip at Clinton tonight.

Don Eddy

Eddy, a 22-year-old southpaw, scattered six hits through the eight innings he worked and allowed just one earned run. He also helped his own cause by belting a solo home run in the second frame off Quincy loser Ron Matney.

Right-hander Jim Limke preserved Eddy's second victory of the year by getting out of a 2-men-on, none-out situation in the ninth inning. Walks to the Cubs' Dave Rosello and Mike Nye produced the threat, but Limke retired the next three hitters with no further trouble.

The Foxes never trailed, moving to a fat 6-1 cushion after the first five frames. The Cubs, however, nicked Eddy for a single marker in the sixth and two more in the eighth to make it interesting.

Collects 10 Hits

Appleton collected 10 hits for the afternoon, as eight Foxes hit safely. Roger Reid and Stu Singleton each rapped a pair of safeties and each drove in a run to pace the offense.

Singleton was back at his former regular position at shortstop. For most of the spring, he had been playing in the outfield after recovering from a broken leg last season.

Foxes manager Tom Saffell made several other lineup changes to get right-handed power into the lineup in facing Matney, another lefthander. Joe Bowen played left field, Joe Cherry started at first base, Rod Pommes moved from third base into right field and Hugh Yancy manned third.

Singles by Bowen and Cherry got the Foxes off to a 1-0 lead in the first inning. Ron Williams, who had been hit by a pitch, scored the run on Cherry's liner to right field.

Eddy's blast, a 340-foot shot over the left field wall, made it 2-0 in the second, and after the Cubs retaliated for a run in the third, the Foxes mounted their biggest rally for three runs in the bottom of the fourth.

A walk to Rod Pommes, an error on Yancy's infield hopper, and singles by Arteaga, Singleton, and Reid produced the three tallies

Races Home

Appleton added an insurance marker in the fifth and chased Matney in the process. Yancy got the RBI on a single to left on the run-and-hit, as Cherry raced home from second base. The Foxes might have had a bigger outburst, but Pommes was thrown out at the plate on the fielding play of the day by the Cubs' center fielder Ossie Troconis following Singleton's hit.

Third-baseman Matt Alexander stroked two hits and scored two runs to pace the Cubs' offense.

Alexander, a switch - hitter, gave Quincy its first tally in the third when he walked, stole second after getting caught in a rundown, and rode home on Troconis' double to left. Mike

Orioles Sweep Pair

Royals' Oliver Cracks 6 Hits in 15-1 Win Over the Angels

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Five of a kind will take the pot in most wild poker games, but in nine innings of baseball it's hard to top Bob Oliver's six-card Royal flush.

Oliver, a muscular Kansas City rookie, cracked a home run, a double and four singles in six trips to the plate Sunday as the Royals obliterated the California Angels 15-1.

The 6-foot-2, 215-pound outfielder, who got credit for his sixth hit via a post-game scoring change, became the 20th player in American League history—and the first in seven years—to collect half a dozen in a nine-inning contest.

While the Royals were crushing California with a 19-hit, three-homer barrage, the AL's hottest clubs—Minnesota, Washington and Baltimore—kept rolling in high gear and Oakland pitcher John "Blue Moon" Odom went on an RBI rampage against the Seattle Pilots.

The Twins edged the Chicago White Sox 4-3 for their eighth consecutive victory; the Senators nipped Cleveland 4-3 for their 10th in 11 starts and the Orioles completed a four-game sweep at New York by pasting the Yankees 5-3 and 14-2 in a doubleheader.

Odom drove in six runs with a homer and double, and also beat out an infield hit, powering the Athletics past Seattle 11-7 after the Pilots took the doubleheader opener 6-4.

Rico Petrocelli's two-run homer in the 11th inning gave Boston a 4-2 victory over Detroit.

The Royals battered six California pitchers—and Oliver hit safely against each of them—in the biggest offensive splurge of their brief lifetime. The onslaught backed the four-hit pitching of Roger Nelson, who coasted to his second victory in four decisions.

Oliver, who went into the game batting .220 and came out with a .304 mark, got started with a second inning single off loser Clyde Wright. He doubled off Eddie Fisher in the fourth and greeted Pedro Borbon with his third homer, a two-run blast, as the Royals exploded for five runs in the fifth for a 7-0 lead.

They led 9-0 when Oliver opened the seventh with a single off Phil Ortega. Nine batters and five runs later, he came up again against George Brunet and rolled to third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez, who threw into the dirt at first as another run scored.

Rodriguez was charged with an error and Oliver, who singled in the ninth against Tom Murphy, went into the clubhouse to celebrate a 5-for-5 day. But the official scorer later reversed himself and credited the 26-year-old former Minnesota farmhand with a hit and an RBI on the grounder to Rodriguez.

Slams 6 Hits

Floyd Robinson, who slammed six hits for the White Sox in 1962, was the last American Leaguer to turn the trick. The feat has been accomplished by 18 National League players since 1900, the last of them Jesus Alou of San Francisco in 1964.

Wilbert Robinson of the 1892 Baltimore Orioles in the National League is the only man ever to stroke seven in a nine-inning game.

Cubs Lose to Mets Twice

Cloninger Hurls 2-Hitter

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tony Cloninger came back Rov Face came back. Even Rich Allen came back.

But even though Allen was $1,000 poorer when he came back to the Philadelphia line-up, he wasn't minus any of his hitting prowess.

The controversial slugger, who was fined $1,000 for missing the previous two games without permission, drove in two runs as the Phillies whipped sagging St. Louis 5-2 Sunday.

Cloninger, meanwhile, bounced back in Cincinnati's second-game, 12-0 decision over San Diego, pitching a masterful two-hitter just about 24 hours after he failed to get a Padre out in the first inning. The Reds also won the opener 3-2.

Face, 41-year-old veteran who was out of work last month until Montreal took a chance on him, relieved for the fourth time in the past week and gained his second victory against no defeats in the Expos' 6-4 victory over Pittsburgh.

Houston Wins

In other National League games, Atlanta downed Los Angeles 4-1, Houston tripped San Francisco 3-1 and the New York Mets took the Chicago Cubs twice by 3-2 scores.

Allen's latest troubles started Friday when he missed two planes from Philadelphia to St. Louis and thus the Phillies' night game with the Cardinals. He didn't make it in time for Saturday's game either, showing up an hour after it started.

He was there and in the lineup for Sunday's contest, though, and responded by driving in runs with a double in the third inning and a sacrifice fly in the sixth as the Phillies completed a sweep of the three-game series.

"We had a great weekend, we had beautiful weather, we won three games and Richie Allen came back and had a great day," beamed Phils Manager Bob Skinner, carefully skirting any mention of the AWOL incident.

Cloninger started for Cincinnati against San Diego Saturday but was battered for five runs in the first inning

However, Manager Dave Bristol came back with the right-hander in the second game of Sunday's doubleheader, and Cloninger responded by holding the Padres hitless after the second inning.

Also Hits Homer

The pitcher also contributed a homer and a single to the Reds' 11-hit attack as he picked up his first victory against four losses.

The Reds won the opener behind run-scoring hits by Tommy Helms in the fourth and Johnny Bench in the sixth.

In Montreal, Face came in to pitch in the eighth inning, shut off a Pirate rally and then held his former team in the ninth after the Expos rallied for three runs in the last of the eighth

Mets Sparked

Durocher Fumes Over Beanball Incidents

BY JOE MOOHSILL

CHICAGO (AP) — Tom Seaver's brush back pitch to Ron Santo got the Chicago Cubs to lose their cool and a pair of 3-2 decisions to the New York Mets Sunday.

The Cubs, led by Santo, had taken five of their first six games against the Mets to climb into first place in the National League's Eastern Division.

In the second inning of the first game, Seaver's pitch sent Santo sprawling on a 2-2 count. The angered Santo, got up, took a third strike and stormed to the dugout.

The following inning Seaver came to bat and Bill Hands' first pitch caught the Met right-hander on his left arm. Hands was the first batter in the Cub half of the third and, sure as shooting, Seaver's first pitch got Hands on the leg.

Umpire Frank Secory stepped out and pointed a finger at Seaver which was assumed to be a warning and an automatic $50 fine. This brought manager Gil Hodges storming out of the dugout only to be pacified a few minutes later.

As matters turned out Secory hadn't officially warned Seaver and therefore there was no fine.

"I told him 'you have better control than that'," Secory said later. "I did not warn him."

"When is a warning official or unofficial," stormed Cub Manager Leo Durocher. "If I had known it wasn't an official warning, I'd have really given him a go around."

Seaver and the Mets obviously were happy about the entire outcome.

"I brushed him back to set him up for the next pitch," said Seaver. "It's all part of the game. And I got my next pitch where I wanted it. He took the third strike.

"Sure I threw at Hands," continued Seaver. "We can't let them intimidate us. Anyhow, the

Martin's Hunch About Pinch-Hitter Pays Off

T. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS P) — Billy Martin, manager the Minnesota twins, predict- during spring training that kie Graig Nettles would "kill ne poor pitcher, He'll break heart."

Martin not only was right or t hunch but he guessed cor- tly on the left-handed hitting ttles Sunday as the Minneso- Twins swept to their eighth aight victory and 16th in their 19 games with a 4-3 decision r the Chicago White Sox.

eorge Mitterwald, a right- ded hitting catcher who had singles and a double in his previous at bats, was due to against Chicago's right- ded reliever, Bob Locker.

stead, Martin called on Net- to pinch hit with the White leading 3-2 in the last of the th before a regular season ord crowd of 44,184 for Bat ettles, who had hit a three- homer off Locker April 26 in inch hitting role in Chicago, onded with a 380-foot shot the right field bleachers to he score.

Repeat Performance

ne twins promptly loaded the s and pushed across the ing run on an infield hit by ar Tovar.

didn't care if Mitty had hits," said Martin later. ttles had done it twice now. tried it twice now and it 't work out for Locker. I ght I'd try it again. It's a entage play. I know what y can do against certain iers."

ettles said Locker's pitch "in exactly the same place one off him last week.

Not Favorite Pitcher

ocker is the type of pitcher n't like to hit against. He is type of sidearm pitcher I lly have trouble against."

ite Sox Manager Don Gut- lge, now 0-2 since he suc- ed Al Lopez, who resigned hicago field general Friday. said Nettles "is a low ball hitter. Locker is a low ball pitcher.

"It was his (Nettles) strength against Locker's strength. Nettles kind of stepped back and hit it with his power."

Locker said, "Even though he hit the same pitch for a home run in Chicago, I thought that my best would be better than his best. I was wrong.

"He's a very good hitter—unbelievable power. I'm going to have to change the way I pitch him, but it wasn't a bad pitch."

"It was a rough one to lose," said Gutteridge. "We just made too many mistakes."

whole thing helped to spark our ball club."

Hodges said he came storming out of his dugout when it appeared Secory had warned Seaver because "hands started it all by hitting Seaver."

What about Seaver throwing at Santo?

Who Can Tell?

"Did he?" asked Hodges. "He didn't hit him so how can anyone tell he threw at him. As matters stood, Hands hit Seaver first and Seaver hit Hands and that evened things. So when he appeared to warn my man, I wanted to know why he didn't warn Hands. When he told me he had spoken to their side and that it wasn't an official warning against Seaver, I was satisfied."

"Nuts," said Durocher. "After Seaver threw at Santo and Hands hit Seaver, Secory told me 'He had his shot and now you've had yours to even it, that's all.' But when Seaver hit Hands that put them one up in my book."

Anyway, there's an old saying about letting sleeping dogs lie and maybe the Chicago Cubs learned that lesson.

Meanwhile, Santo went hitless for both games and killed off a first inning rally in the second game by hitting into a double play. Ron Swoboda drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the first game and scored the winning run in the second game by going all the way home from second base on a wild pitch by Dick Selma when catcher Randy Hundley lost the ball.

Twins, Orioles And Senators Keep Rolling with Oliver at Denver last season before moving up to the Twins, ignited a decisive eighth inning rally against Chicago with a pinch hit homer, tying the game.

Two walks and an error then filled the bases and Cesar Tovar beat out an infield hit—a roller to third baseman Bill Melton, who started to go to second base and then held the ball as the winning run scored.

The victory, before a record Minnesota regular season crowd of 44,184, was the 17th for the Twins in their last 19 starts. The White Sox have lost six in a row.

Successive Homers

Frank Howard and Mike Epstein crashed successive homers in the sixth inning, pulling Washington into a 3-3 tie against the Indians, and Ed Brinkman sent the go-ahead run home with a two-out single in the seventh.

The Senators have won five straight while the Indians have fallen three times in succession for a 3-18 season record.

Dave Johnson's two-run double keyed a five-run sixth inning flurry that sent the Orioles past New York in the first game and they blitzed the Yanks in the nightcap as Andy Etchebarren drove in five runs and Paul Blair four.

Dave McNally gained his fifth victory without a loss in the opener and Jim Hardin won his first of the year in the second game.

The double setback extended the Yanks' losing streak to six games.

Odom belted a three-run homer in the second inning, delivered three more runs with a bases-loaded double in the third and beat out an infield hit in the sixth, leading the Athletics' second game attack. But he needed seventh inning relief help after pitching one-hit ball up to that point.

The Oakland ace, 5-1, fell one RBI short of the American League single game mark for pitchers held by former Yankee Vic Raschi. Cincinnati's Tony Cloninger holds the major league mark of nine.

Hits 2 Homers

Reggie Jackson hit a pair of bases-empty homers and Sal Bando also banged a solo homer for the Athletics.

Home runs by Tommy Harper, Wayne Comer and Don Mincher won the opener for Seattle right-hander Marty Pattin, 4-1, who got ninth inning help from John O'Donoghue after Dick Green tagged a leadoff homer.

Petrocelli's seventh homer, following a walk to Reggie Smith, broke up the Red Sox-Tigers duel. Boston had tied the game in the ninth on a run-scoring single by Dick Schofield.

Rookie Mike Nagy blanked the Tigers on two hits until the eighth, when Jim Northrup's two-run triple sent them ahead 2-1.

Tip Blues, 2-1, for Sweep

Canadiens Stanley Cup Champs Again

By CHARLIE BAROUH

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Claude Ruel can get some sleep now. The Montreal Canadiens can sip champagne and enjoy their money.

The St. Louis Blues can console themselves in Florida while Blues' Coach Scotty Bowman mulls over a lesson learned too late.

The Canadiens edged the Blues 2-1, Sunday to sweep the National Hockey League Stanley Cup finals in four games. It was the 16th time the Canadiens took possession.

St. Louis has yet to beat Montreal in 17 games over two seasons.

John Ferguson scored the winning goal in the third period less than four minutes after Ted Harris tied the game 1-1. The Blues took a 1-0 lead, the first time they led in the finals, on Terry Gray's second-period goal.

Personal Victory

Ruel indicated winning the Stanley Cup was anticlimatic for him, not because he didn't think much of the Blues.

"It's a personal victory for me," the Canadiens' coach said. "No one knows what I went through all year. I was always worried and I've been having trouble sleeping all year. To finish first was better for me than to win the Stanley Cup."

Bowman had to be content with what he considered a moral victory. The Blues had been clearly outclassed in the first three games, but showed in the last game they could give the Canadiens trouble.

"You know it's too late now, but I'll know how to play them next time," Bowman said.

Take Vacation

The Blues leave Wednesday for a one-day vacation at the Florida motel of club owner Sidney Salomon Jr. But it wasn't until Sunday that Bowman or any of the Blues felt like going.

"It's hard to take a vacation when you don't really feel like it," Bowman said. "You don't like losing."

At least, Bowman figured, the Canadiens had to work hard for that last victory.

"You have to be humble and you have to be hungry in this game," Bowman said. "Montreal was hungry, but sofe of them weren't humble. They sort of lorded it over us."

Parnelli Jones Winner

Appleton's J. J. Smith 6th in 250-Mile Race

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — J. J. Smith of Appleton, Wis., finished sixth Sunday in the seventh annual 250-mile Yankee stock car race.

Smith, in a Mercury, won $700. Jack Knippel of Milwaukee, in a Ford, was seventh for $675.

Parnelli Jones won the race in a Ford for $7,180.

Jones, driving a 1969 Ford Torino, set a record of 82.37 m.p.h. for the event.

Al Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., in a 1967 Dodge Charger, finished second, a minute and 18 5 seconds behind Jones.

Jones roared into the lead on Unser's 30th lap pit stop and it was Parnelli the rest of the way.

A. J. Foyt Jr. of Houston, in another Torino, was defending champion in the race and finished fourth despite a spin into a ditch that cost him two laps.

Veteran Roger McCluskey, Tucson, Ariz., was third in a 1969 Plymouth.

UW-Parkside Sports Chief Will Speak

Tom Rosandich, athletic director at the University of Wisconsin-Parkside, will be the guest speaker for Menasha High School's all-sports banquet Tuesday night at Clovis School.

All Bluejay athletes and cheerleaders will be honored at the banquet, which starts at 6:30 p.m. Seymour Priestley will be master of ceremonies.

Rosandich had a varied career before accepting the Parkside appointment last Feb. 1. The native of Sheboygan Falls has served as publisher and editor of Track Times and spent four years developing Olympia Sport Village, which is described as America's only year-round sport camp.

As a captain in the Marine Corps. Rosandich founded and directed the first Marine Corps Relays and traveled with military teams all over the world. Later, the State Department assigned him to Laos where he built that country's first track.

This experience was repeated in many parts of the world as he helped teams prepare for international track meets. In all, Rosandich has coached in 45 countries.

The summer league was being tried after aldermen on the health and recreation committee reported receiving requests for such an organization. A second meeting has been scheduled for 7 p.m. Wednesday in the council chambers to see whether any more interest can be generated.

Houston pulled off a National League record seven double plays in defeating uan Marichal and San Francisco. Doug Rader scored two of the Astros' three runs after tripling and doubling.

Ron Swoboda drove in the winning run in the opener and scored the winner in the nightcap as the Mets surprised the high-flying Cubs.

In the opener, Swoboda's sacrifice fly capped a two-run rally that put New York ahead to stay. In the second game, Swoboda raced home from second on Dick Selma's wild pitch in the seventh. Tom Seaver and Tug McGraw each scattered nine hits in halting Chicago.

Celts, Lakers On National TV Tonight

Championship Tilt Of NBA Playoffs Begins at 9 p.m.

By JACK STEVENSON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Boston's Sam Jones succinctly sums up the National Basketball Association's championship struggle in seven words: "It all comes down to this one."

The Celtics, who make a habit of winning titles, and the Los Angeles Lakers, who haven't done it yet, tangle in their playoff payoff tonight at 9 p.m. CDT before a national television audience with the local area blacked out.

To the winning club goes $48,000 from the playoff kitty and to the loser $32,000.

For Jones, the game also marks the end of a Celtic career dating back to 1957. The veteran guard has announced his retirement to enter collegiate coaching.

Boston and Los Angeles, with their big men Bill Russell and Wilt Chamberlain, each has won three times in the best-four-of-seven series. Every victory has come on the home court, an advantage the Laker should in the finale at the Forum before 17,500.

West Will Play

Their big question centers on the physical condition of Jerry West, the sharpest shooter on the Los Angeles club. He pulled a hamstring muscle in game No. 5 and wasn't up to par when the Celtics evened the series with a 99-90 victory at Boston on Saturday.

"I'll definitely play," declared West. "I won't be in top shape, but I'll be better than I was Saturday."

After averaging 39 points a game for the first five, West scored 26 as the Celtics squared the series.

"We won that game because we held West 13 points under his average," commented Boston captain John Havlicek. "I seriously doubt we could have accomplished it if he was sound."

5 Points Difference

Five times since the Lakers moved to Los Angeles they have faced Boston in the finale and five times they've lost. This time they won the first two games but couldn't win in Boston, and after six battles, only five points separate the two clubs—Los Angeles having that statistical edge 638-633.

At home, the Lakers have won 120-118; 118-112; and 117-104. In Boston the Celtics have triumphed 111-105; 89-88; and 99-90.

In the Bill Russell era, his clubs have won the title 10 times in the past 12 years. Few thought they could do it again after finishing fourth in the Eastern division during the regular season with a 48-34 record. Then they dispatched Philadelphia 4-1 and New York 4-2.

Potential Winner

Mark Donohue First To Pass Speedway Test

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — "He's all right."

This evaluation of auto race driver Mark Donohue by veteran Jimmy McElreath is the equivalent to a 21-gun salute in the speed business.

McElreath, a Texan noted for wasting few words, was one of the official observers Saturday when Donohue, of Media, Pa., became the first driver this year to pass the 100-mile test required of all newcomers to the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Donohue now is eligible to try to qualify for the 53rd 500-mile race May 30 in the 10-mile time trials starting May 17. The consensus around gasoline alley is that he's a cinch to qualify and definitely a potential winner.

Calling Donohue a "rookie" is about as silly a term as it was when world champion Graham Hill won the 500 as a newcomer in 1966. He has been U.S. Road Racing champion the last two years. He won the Trans-Am Sedan championship last year. He and Chuck Parsons won the 24-hour Daytona Race this year.

The Sports Car Club of America named Donohue "driver of the year" in 1965. He has been the highest placing American driver the last two years in the Can-Am series for cars with monster 7 liter engines.

An Indianapolis motor speedway publicist, trying to pry biographical material out of the quiet Donohue, ended up with about three sentences.

"I don't like to blow my own horn," the baby-faced, crewcut driver said.

Roger Penske, another famous sports car driver from Philadelphia and one of Donohue's car owners, is happy to trumpet for Donohue.

"The thing about Donohue," Penske said, "Is that he's not only a great driver but he protects the equipment. He finishes because he knows what's going on in the machinery. He sets up the car. He takes it out and he comes back and tells exactly what's right or wrong about it.

"Of course," Penske said, "Donohue is an engineering graduate of Brown University. There are not too many like him in racing and he's a real plus for us."

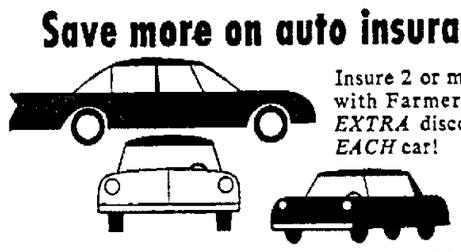

Donohue will have his choice of two of the finest four-wheel drive cars in the field. Both were built by Lola Cars, Ltd., of Slough, England. One has a turbocharged Offenhauser engine, the same as Bobby Unser's 1968 Indianapolis winner. The other a new turbocharged Ford power plant reputed to be the hottest engine at the speedway this year.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Rochester left-hander Marcelino Lopez pitched a seven-inning no-hitter Sunday as the Red Wings downed Richmond 5-1 in the second game of an International League doubleheader. Richmond won the opener 2-1.

The no-hitter by the 25-year-old was the first of the International League season.

Lillard Paces All-Star Pin Qualifiers

Dotty Fothergill Leads Women in $65,000 Tourney

MIAMI (AP) — Former champions Bill Lillard of Houston and Dotty Fothergill of North Attleboro, Mass., set the pace for 360 bowlers Sunday after two days of qualifying for the 28th annual $65,000 All-Star Bowling Tournament

Lillard, 41, the 1956 winner, paced the 216 men with a 12-game total of 2,619. Miss Fothergill, the defending champion, was far in front of the 144 women with a 1,719 eight-game total.

Lillard took the lead from the left-handers who had dominated the first day of shooting with a 1,358 on games of 200, 182, 269, 237, 255, and 215. He averaged 218 for the first 12 games.

Defending champion Jim Stefanich of Joliet, Ill., was second among the men with 2,574.

In third place was Virg Enger of Minneapolis with 2,558. The first round leader, Mike Praznovsky of Hialeah, Fla., fell to fourth with 2,533.

In the women's division, Betty Kuzynski of Chicago stood in second place with 1,611 followed by Kayoda Suda of Yokahoma, Japan, with 1,631.

Hinson Beats Beard on Third Playoff Hole

Wins $20,000 In New Orleans Test; 3 Share Third Place

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Folks back in Georgia's Coffee County didn't think Larry Hinson would ever amount to much on the pro golf trail. But look at him today.

The 24-year-old Hinson, on the tour exactly a year, beat bespectacled Frank Beard on the third hole of sudden death Sunday to capture the $20,000 first prize in the $100,000 Greater New Orleans Open.

They had finished 72 holes over the lush Lakewood Country Club course with 275s—12 under par.

"Everyone back home just thought I'd never make it because I didn't make good in my studies—a C average going through college—and they said, 'He's not bright and he can't knock the ball far enough and his handicap will probably keep him out.'" said Hinson.

Weakened by Polio

Hinson's handicap is a left arm weakened by a bout with polio when he was five years old. But he has proven he can play with the best.

Hinson, who shot a closing round 67, started the final round five strokes behind Beard and Dave Hill.

Beard, who finished regulation play Sunday with a 72, earned $11,200.

Hill slipped to a 73 and a three way tie for third at 276 with Bobby Mitchell, who had a 67, and Joel Goldstrand, who shot 70. Each won $5,300.

This was Hinson's first tour victory, his previous best was a second place at Hattiesburg, Miss. The big paycheck here boosted his winnings for the year to slightly over $31,000.

Hinson started playing golf at Douglas, Ga.

"When I first started playing, the instructor told me to turn loose of the club down there at the bottom and I was embarrassed. I'd turn it loose and I'd throw the club every time."

Gesturing with his left hand, he continued, "I didn't have strength enough in this hand to hold it. Now I can take any club I want and turn it loose and pull it right on through."

Hinson habitually squeezes a little rubber ball to strengthen his grip and works out with an 18-pound weight.

Collapse of Grandstand Kills Tennis Spectator

BARBADOS (AP) — One spectator died after being injured when a grandstand holding over 600 persons collapsed Saturday at the opening round of the Davis Cup tie between Mexico and the British Caribbean.

A spokesman at the Queen Elizabeth Hospital said Sunday that the victim was Sydney Smith, but the cause of death had still not been determined. He died during the night.

About 50 people were injured when the stand collapsed, 12 of them seriously.

Sharp Increases Seen in Green Bay Economic District

Fox Cities Included in Forecast Of Population, Economic Growth

Sharp increases in population, employment and earnings per worker are projected between now and the year 2000 — subject to periodic revision — for the Green Bay economic district, which includes the Fox Cities.

The Office of Business Economics (OBE), of the U.S. Department of Commerce, recently completed the latest districting effort and included the entire Fox Valley and northeastern Wisconsin in the Green Bay OBE district.

Such districts, according to the latest newsletter of the Wisconsin Division of Economic Development released today, make it simpler to assess market potential of new products, for example, or to plan public facilities.

The latest districting effort, according to the state agency, was one of the most ambitious and costly. It was done in conjunction with a study for the Water Resources Council.

Some parts of the state, according to the OBE district boundaries, are joined with areas in neighboring states.

1.2 Million

The report and projections, however, show the Green Bay district to have an estimated 1.2 million population in 30 years — the second largest in Wisconsin and exceeding the Madison area.

For the period 1960 to 2000, the OBE showed the Green Bay district with a 45 per cent population increase. The Milwaukee OBE district would have an 85 per cent increase.

Madison and Wausau districts also would have sizable population increases, but they are not as large in area as the Green Bay OBE district.

When it comes to forecasts on earnings per worker, the Green Bay district is expected to have a 205 per cent increase over the next 30 years.

The Green Bay district also will be one of the larger employment areas in the state, based on the 1960-2000 predictions, with a 53 per cent increase anticipated.

Soo Train Derails West of Sherwood

Five Cars Leave Tracks; 200 Feet of Rail Is Ripped Up

Service was restored about 6 a.m. today on Milwaukee Road tracks near Fire Lane 12, west of Sherwood, the scene of a five-car train derailment early Sunday.

The five cars, three of which were loaded, were part of a 45-car Soo Line freight train enroute from Manitowoc to Stevens Point about 5 a.m. Sunday. The Soo Line uses some Milwaukee Road track in this area.

Cause of the derailment, second in about three months on the same tracks between Menasha and Sherwood, is still being investigated, according to Soo Line officials. A spokesman at the Milwaukee Road's local office said information would have to come through Soo Line officials.

Tracks Ripped Up

About 200 feet of tracks were ripped up when the five cars, located near the end of the westbound train, left the rails.

Three of five cars were loaded with fertilizer, canned goods, and machinery. Two cars were empty, according to a Soo Line official. He said the cars included a gondola, a hopper, and three refrigerated units.

Large wrecking equipment and cranes from the railroad and from an Appleton firm were used to clear the railroad right of way.

Three Hurt In Appleton Minor Crashes

Bumps, Bloody Nose, Bruises Suffered In Trio of Mishaps

Three persons suffered minor injuries in as many Appleton traffic accidents Sunday.

Dennis H. Zahn, 24, Mattoon, suffered bumps and bruises when his car went through a red light at N. Richmond Street and W. Wisconsin Avenue and struck a car driven by James W. Van Rooy, 22, 1225 Briarcliff Drive.

Police said Van Rooy was westbound on Wisconsin and Zahn was northbound on Richmond. The accident occurred at 12:15 a.m.

Douglas J. Landeau, 33, 1401 S. Driscoll St., suffered a bloody nose when his car ran into a parked car in the 1800 block of W. Pine Street about 1:25 a.m. Sunday.

The parked car is owned by Lewis C. Bateman, 1512 Bartell Drive. Landeau, who was westbound on Pine Street, said he was forced into the parked auto by an eastbound car which was in the wrong lane. Applton fire fighters were summoned to the scene when the engine in Landeau's car overheated.

Cyril J. Loughrin, 42, 224 W. Michigan St., suffred abrasions and a bump on his left knee when his car and one driven by Berta Winter, 1216 W. Oklahoma St., collided at N. Erb and W. Marquette Streets about 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

4 Youths Injured; Car Leaves Road, Snaps Utility Pole

KAUKAUNA — Four young people were injured and are being treated at Kaukauna Community Hospital after a one-car accident on Outagamie County Trunk Z near Brill Road about 2:20 a.m. today.

According to police, Arnold Van Hammond, 19, 211 W. 10th St., was driving east on Z when he lost control of the car on a slight curve, left the road and struck and broke off a utility pole. The driver suffered a fracture of the upper jaw and face lacerations, while passengers Peggy Feistel, 51 Lynn Drive, Appleton, had face cuts and a bruised back, Sue Gonnering, 18, route 2, Kaukauna, had a fractured hip and broken leg, and Mark Cummings, 18, 305 E. 14th St., Kaukauna, suffered cuts and bruises.

The 1969 model car was demolished.

All were taken to the hospital in a city ambulance.

Personnel Committee of Council to Organize

KAUKAUNA — A reorganizational meeting of the personnel committee of the common council will be held at 6:45 p.m. Tuesday to elect a chairman and secretary. A regular council meeting will follow.

Finance Unit Plans To Watch Spending

Committee Questions Fund Request

The new Outagamie County Board finance committee indicated this morning that it's going to perform its duties as overseer of county spending — even if it means shaping up certain committees and committee chairmen.

Finance committeemen issued no ultimatum, but they made their intentions clear on a request from the courts, justice and enforcement committee.

The courts committee approved a request for $2,000 worth of equipment for the district attorney's office, but gave no indication of where the money should come from and how and why a particular brand of equipment was selected. No funds had been budgeted for the equipment.

After hearing an explanation from Dist. Atty. James Long, the committee agreed to hold the request until the courts committee answered the questions. It also questioned why only three of five courts committeemen had signed the request.

Two Requests

Committeemen became irritated this morning when, as they combed vouchers, they came upon two requests from the courts committee — one for dictating and transcribing equipment for the district attorney and another for $200 worth of letterheads for the clerk of circuit courts.

Initially Clerk of Courts Gloria Johnson and Long were the targets of several angry comments, but after hearing Long's explanation on his equipment request, committeemen redirected their disdain.

After the two requests were read, they complained that the committee had not been informed of the requests and allowed to function in guiding purchase.

"I think this is a bunch of bunk," commented Board Chairman Sylvester Esler, Appleton, on department heads proceeding without finance committee direction.

Supv. Marvin Babbitt, Seymour, finance committee chairman, noted Miss Johnson should be written a letter informing her such emergency orders (as the letterheads) cannot be made "on every emergency."

"Her job doesn't include the buying and spending of the county's money" he said.

Committeemen also questioned Long's holding demonstrations of equipment and making selection without the finance committee involved. Long, later in an appearance before the committee, indicated he had received authorization to proceed from the courts committee.

He noted the committee, in-

Prosecution Demanded

Byrnes Hits Obscene Mail Advertisements

WASHINGTON — Rep John W. Byrnes said today he has urged the U.S. Department of Justice and the U.S. Post Office Department to initiate action to prosecute a California firm for the sending of "obscene" advertisements to hundreds of Green Bay area businesses during the past few weeks.

Byrnes said the advertisements offering for sale movie films and photos, contained sample pictures of a "pornographic and perverted nature".

The congressman said that in his opinion the advertisements meet the legal tests of obscenity defined by the U.S. Supreme Court in a 1966 decision.

Pandering Charge

"However, even if you disagree with this opinion," Byrnes told the agencies, "I would suggest that the promotional nature of these advertisements and their apparent widespread and indiscriminate distribution would constitute 'pandering' of the type which the Supreme Court has said may support an obscenity charge even if the material in itself was not obscene."

The Green Bay Post Office has received approximately 100 complaints from Green Bay businessmen about the advertisements, Byrnes said. He added that a large number of complaints also have been referred to him by constituents.

Byrnes demanded that the Justice Department prosecute the firm, the Adult Novelty Co., for criminal violation of the postal obscenity statute and he asked the chief postal inspector of the Post Office to gather evidence for such a prosecution.

"While the Supreme Court has unfortunately almost vitiated the laws against obscenity," Byrnes said, "it is my hope that there is still enough life left in these laws to end the sending of such disgusting advertisements."

Byrnes also reported that Marvin Miller, owner of another California firm which has been sending advertising circulars to Green Bay area taverns and liquor stores recently was sentenced to five years in jail and fined $7,500. His company, Collectors Publication of City of Industry, Calif., was also fined $15,000. The conviction was based in part upon Miller's use of the mails to disseminate material identical to that sent to Green Bay businesses, Byrnes said. Miller has appealed the conviction.

Squad Car Hit From Behind; Policeman Hurt

An Appleton policeman suffered a neck injury when his squad car was rammed from behind in the 100 block of N. Richmond Street at mid-morning today.

The injured policeman is Patrolman Darrell R. Berglund, 34, 1727 N. Clark St.

His 1969 squad car was struck by a pickup truck driven by Elmer E. Anderson, 67, 997 Appleton Road, Menasha.

According to the accident report, both vehicles were southbound on Richmond Street, stopped for a red light, when a railroad signal arm was activated and came down. The Anderson vehicle started forward and struck the rear of the squad car.

Rain Stays Away From Fox Valley

Some showers and thunder showers were forecast for parts of the state today, but the sun was making a determined stand in the Fox Valley and the temperature at noon already had reached 75 degrees giving every indication of another delightful spring day in the Fox Cities area.

The northwestern part of the state had occasional showers, Sunday and in the extreme northwestern portion some fog was reported.

Superior had .65 inch of rain and Eau Claire had .07.

Lone Rock had the highest state temperature of 83. Other peaks were Burlington and La Crosse 82, Beloit and Eau Claire 80, Madison, Appleton and Park Falls 79, Wausau 77, Fond du Lac 75, Green Bay 71, Milwaukee 67, Racine 59 and Superior 48.

Fire Damages Kitchen Of Kaukauna Home

KAUKAUNA — Fire of undetermined origin caused extensive damage to the kitchen portion of a home owned by William Alger, 204 E. Eighth St., about 12:20 a.m. Saturday.

The fire is believed to have started in a cabinet underneath the kitchen sink where it burned between the walls, through the hardwood floor and sub-flooring and into the basement. Firemen used about 100 gallons of water to extinguish the blaze which also burned material stored in the cabinet.

McCarthy Widow Scoffs

'Poison' Claim Refuted

The widow of the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy this morning termed as "ridiculous" the suggestion that her late husband was poisoned.

Mrs. Joseph Minetti, Washington, D.C., now the wife of a Federal Communications Commission official, made the comment in reaction to statements made Sunday at the ceremonies in Appleton of the 12th anniversary of McCarthy's death.

She said that it's "so ridiculous that it is not worthy of comment," when asked to comment this morning by a member of The Post-Crescent's Washington Bureau.

Samuel Murray, Milwaukee, vice president of the McCarthy Foundation and president of the Friends of McCarthy, attempted Sunday during a memorial program at the Outagamie County Court before about 50 people to stimulate an investigation into the death of the controversial Republican senator.

Murray asked "why no autopsy was performed at the time of death despite laws in the State of Maryland which authorize an autopsy when death is caused by suspicious or unusual means."

The senator's death certificate listed acute hepatitis.

Murray urged authorities in Outagamie County and Maryland to investigate the death.

"A mist still enshrouds the fact of McCarthy's death," Murray said.

(No autopsy was necessary in McCarthy's death because he died while under the care of a medical doctor. He died at Bethesda Naval Hospital in Bethesda, Md., outside of Washington, D. C.)

Graveside ceremonies at St. Mary's Cemetery preceded the memorial program which marked the 12th anniversary of the Wisconsin senator's death.

Murray, in his talk, said that McCarthy, President John F. Kennedy and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy died "because they knew who was in the conspiracy to destroy and betray us."

Nearly 400 Students representing 13 county teachers colleges participated in the annual state forensic and music competition Friday at Outagamie County Teachers College in Kaukauna. Shown, from left, studying the program of room assignments are a few of the local participants—Peter Nagan, Kaukauna; Teri DeGroot, Little Chute; Janet Ozburn, Kaukauna; Nan Bongers, Appleton; Sue Heyn, Town of Morrison in Brown County, and Fred Cazzola, Kaukauna. McCarthyite Named Head Of 6th District Democrats

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

SHEBOYGAN — After hearing repeated urgent pleas for unity, caucusing 6th District Democrats chose a McCarthyite for chairman and put his opponent, a Humphrey man, in the No 2 spot of leadership

But when the caucus here Sunday turned to the task of grinding out resolutions they split along the same lines as those that divided the pro-and anti - administration Democrats in last hear's presidential elections.

In virtually every case, the "new" Democrats showed superior strength.

Gordon Loehr, Fond du Lac Meat Cutters Union business agent who was chairman of his local Eugene McCarthy organization and later worked in Indiana for the Minnesota Senator, was elected chairman on a 61-39 secret ballot

Named Vice Chairman

His opponent, Gordon Eichstedt, West Bend, who first supported President Johnson and later Vice President Hubert Humphrey, was elected first vice chairman without opposition. Eichstedt is also a union official, president of his Allied Industrial Workers local at a West Bend manufacturing plant

Loehr has been Fond du Lac County party chairman, Eichstedt Washington County chairman.

For the second vice chairmanship former Winnebago County Chairman William Wingren lost out in what was described as a close election to another McCarthyite, Don Belleau of the Ozaukee County delegation

At least two of the caucus speakers emerged from the ensuing resolution battles looking like prophets.

Harvey Kitzman, Milwaukee, Region 10 United Auto Workers representative and candidate for state party delegate-at-large, told the caucus as it opened, "this is a liberal state," having liberals among its voters. Then he added, "all we've got to do is get them to work together."

He and most other speakers including Loehr and Eichstedt, downplayed divisions in party ranks. James Wimmer, state party chairman told delegates after the election of officers, "I don't thing unity is the highest virtue." He said the Democratic Party is the nation's oldest political party because it has "maintained its forums open" for debate. Debate within the party, "if you believe in coalition politics," said Wimmer, "is the only effective way" to meet the party's challenges.

Of 18 resolutions, five proved particularly troublesome. They dealt with campus unrest, the Vietnam war, shifting the total burden for welfare programs to the federal government, making birth control information and means available to all citizens and admitting college democrats to county, as well as campus party units. All but the welfare measure passed, some after extensive amending. The welfare resolution was tabled.

On Vietnam, the party emerged from one of the day's frequent parliamentary tangles to adopt a request for the Republican Nixon administration to seek United Nations implementation of the 1954 Geneva Convention. This would include a cease-fire and plebiscite election.

Adopted on a divided vote, the resolution fared better than an alternative offered by members of the Sheboygan County party, calling for immediate withdrawal of American troops. A spokesman for the resolutions committee said the two measures were substantially the same in intent, that the alternative produced only a difference in "semantics." It lost with about three votes for every four backing the original version.

The battle over a resolution urging a state party constitution change to allow college students to join regular county party units in the area where they attend school turned into a wrangle between "fat cats" and "young punks."

Wingren used both terms to describe the divisions, amid recollections by several delegates of a 1964 caucus "takeover" by a busload of Oshkosh State University students. Opponents of the resolution conjured up visions of its being the instrument for similar maneuvers in the future.

A resolution supporting "those legislators who are acting with reason and calmess in trying to find and meet the causes of campus unrest" passed after lengthy debate over what reasons prompt student uprisings.

Other resolutions supported the boycott of California grapes in sympathy with migrant workers' efforts to unionize; urged extention of labor laws to cover farm workers; opposed the Nixon administration's missile defense system; urge cutting off tax advantages to non-farm corporations operating farms; supported the right of 18-year-olds to vote; opposed Wisconsin Republican legislators' budget-cutting methods, and took stands favoring more liberal social-welfare and civil rights laws and practices.

Annexation Cases Going To High Court

MADISON — The Schwarzbauer and Banta annexation cases go before the state Supreme Court Tuesday, with attorneys for the city and Town of Menasha giving oral arguments before the court turns to making its rulings

The twin cases are among seven appearances being heard by the court Tuesday

June Ruling

A ruling is expected by early June.

The town is appealing rulings handed down in August last year by Circuit Judge Andrew W Parnell who upheld the city's annexations of both tracts.

The Banta annexation was passed by the Menasha common council in July, 1967, bringing 303 acres of prime industrial land including the Geo. Banta Co. Midway Plant into the city.

1965 Annexation

The Schwarzbauer annexation dates from late 1965 when the city brought in land including the Schwarzbauer industrial park, subsequently bought by the city, and the University of Wisconsin Fox Valley campus.

In the Banta case, questions center on an error in the legal description published before the area was annexed and on the size of the corridor of land reaching north from the old city limits on Airport Road to the Banta plant to link it with the city.

Schwarzbauer Case

Questions in the Schwarzbauer case include the fact that two notices of annexation proceedings were published, each describing different boundaries, before the publication that became the basis for the actual annexation; a bank which held an interest in part of the Schwarzbauer land was not represented among signers of the annexation petition; highway right-of-way was included in the total acreage held by petitioners, who needed control of more than half the territory to bring about the annexation.

Legal Problems

Shared Time Faces Neenah Board

NEENAH — Following several months of scrutiny into the legality of shared time, the board of education of the Neenah Joint School District, will again bring up the subject during its regular monthly meeting tonight.

St. Mary's Students

During its April session, the board decided to check further into the constitutionality of shared time along with the legality of released time.

The Rev. David Kiefer, administrator of St. Mary High School, has asked the board last November if certain students from Neenah enrolled at St. Mary's, could take some courses at Neenah High School

The matter was sent to the city attorney who claimed it would not be constitutional. The board, however, decided to investigate the matter further

The Menasha Board of Education after much deliberation, decided to go along with a shared time proposal for the 1969-70 school year.

Students living in Menasha and attending St Mary High School will be eligible to take home economics or industrial arts courses at Menasha High. Both courses are not offered at the parochial school

Other matters coming before the board's meeting will be a progress report on building projects within the district, a report on the transitional first grade program, new teachers, and a report on the Kellett Task Force on Education.

Cities Get Less Aid In Task Force Plan

Changes in the shared tax formulas as recommended by the Tarr Task Force would have resulted in about $1.3 million less to the cities, towns and villages in Winnebago County if the proposed formula had been in effect in 1968

However, the proposed increases in state school aids would have provided all of the school districts in the county with more aids than they had previously received.

While Winnebago County communities would have lost shared tax aids under the proposed formula changes, other counties, including Outagamie, would have gained.

The Tarr proposal is to take all of the present shared aids which go back to cities and towns under a number of formulas and put them all into one aid program with one formula.

The proposed formula is $30 per resident and 36 per cent of the tax levy above 20 mills.

Under this plan, the Village of Winneconne and the City of Omro would be the only two communities in Winnebago County to gain any amount of money. Winneconne would have received $7,412 more than it actually did in 1968, and Omro would have received $21,388 more.

On the opposite side, the cities and towns of Oshkosh, Neenah, Menasha and the Town of Algoma would have received considerably less, particularly the Town of Menasha.

With the formula change, the Town of Menasha would have received $367,365 less than it actually did in 1968. The City of Neenah would have been hit the next hardest with a reduction of $246,486.

Other reductions in aids would have been, Town of Neenah, $123,713; City of Oshkosh, $145,246; City of Menasha, $163,382; Town of Oshkosh, $103,907, and the Town of Algoma, $57,982.

By contrast, the City of Appleton would have received $305,617 more.

Objective of the recommended changes in the aid formulas is to reduce the spread in tax rates among the communities in the state. Under the present aids system, 133 communities have tax rates under $20 and 124 have rates of over $35

With the proposed aid system, 66 communities would still have rates under $20 but only 27 would still have rates over $35.

Ariens Named Year's Top Businessman

BRILLON — The president of the Ariens Co. was designated Sunday as Wisconsin's small business "man of the year" for 1969.

Mando S. Ariens will appear at a breakfast forum at Milwaukee Friday to receive the award from Gov. Warren P. Knowles. The breakfast forum is sponsored each year by the Bank of Milwaukee and Trust Co., Milwaukee.

Ariens' firm is a land and garden equipment company which has established a network of over 6,000 dealers throughout the nation. It is a major Brillion employer, with over 300 people on its payroll.

Banker Pleased

Richard G. Jacobus, bank president, said he was very pleased with the choice. Of Ariens, he added: "He certainly stands out in the State of Wisconsin because of his achievements in leadership, contributions to the agriculture equipment industry and, most important, his devotion to promoting the rugged, individualistic, pioneering spirit that has made America great."

After Ariens graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1932, he, his father, the late Henry Ariens, and two brothers, started the firm. It is credited with developing the first American-made rotary tiller.

Ariens now produces snowmobiles, tractors, riding mowers, garden tillers, snow throwers and power mowers.

Ariens was vice president, general manager and chief engineer of the firm until 1956 when he was elected president.

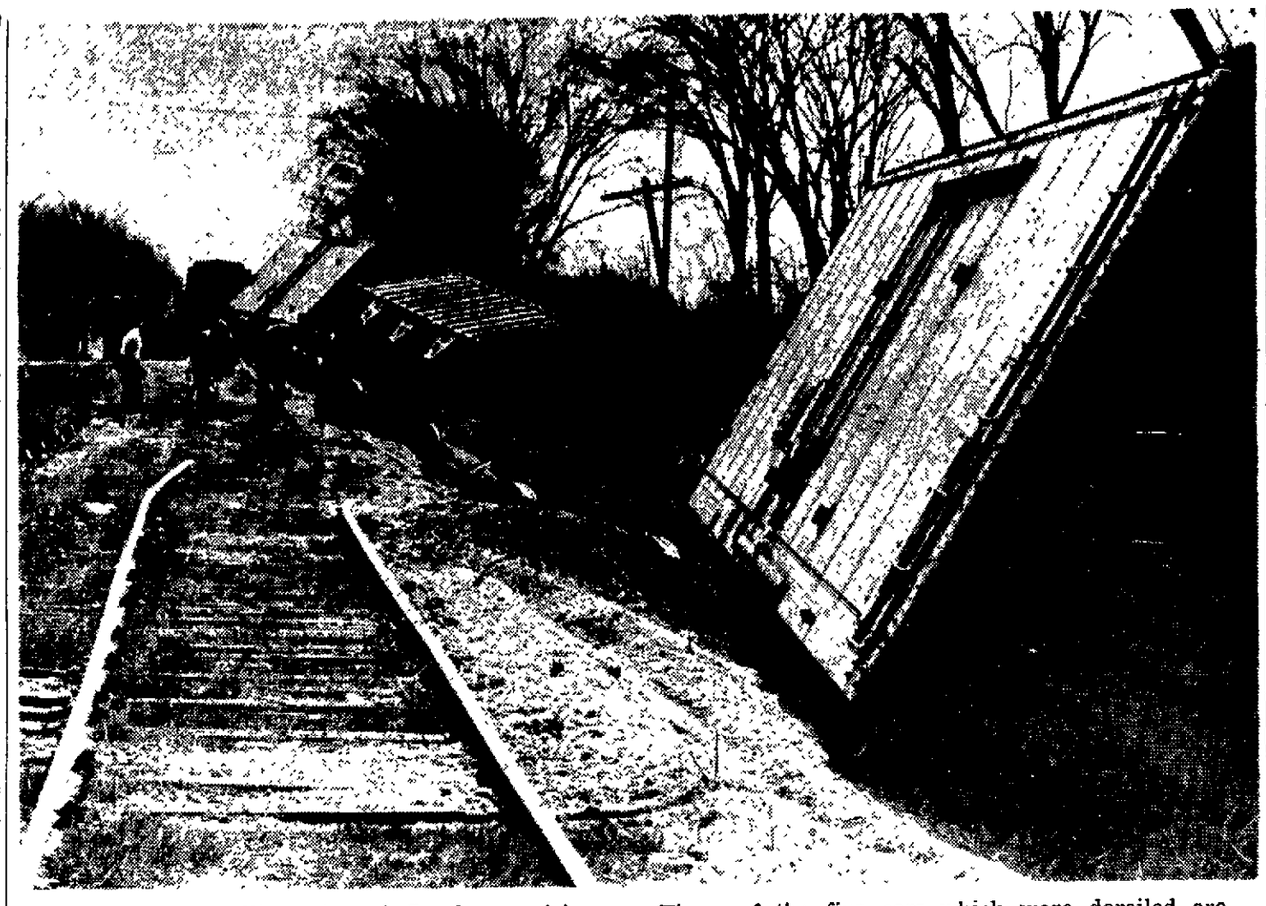

Ariens Co earlier this year announced the formation of a Canadian subsidiary to market its products in Canada.

Foundation Created

The company created the Ariens foundation in 1967 to foster academic and vocational education in Wisconsin. The first major project was a gift of the first Co-operative Vocational School in the nation to the Brillion school district. Two other firms participated in the more than $100,000 gift, and the Ariens Co. houses elementary school grades.

Ariens himself has been active in the community. He has been a member of the American Society of Metals for 38 years and equally active in industrial organizations. He is a major supporter of St. Norbert College, De Pere.

He was president of the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute in 1965 and 1966 and won national recognition as a spokesman for the industry.

Railroad Crews Were at work Sunday repairing the 200 feet of track that was torn up in a Soo Line freight train derailment early Sunday morning. Three of the five cars which were derailed are shown here. The line, which runs between Menasha and Manitowoc, was reopened this morning.

Burglary Receipts At All Time Low; Steal Empty Safe

Burglars must have been highly disappointed when they opened a safe carted away from "220 N. Lynndale" early today.

Outagamie County sheriff's investigators said the safe, taken from the basement of the Town of Grand Chute night club, was empty. The 300-pound safe had to be carried up a stairway before burglars could get it outside.

Burglars did manage to get about $50 in cash from an office desk, investigators said. The burglary was discovered by a janitor early today.

Entry into the night club was gained by prying open a door. A lighted clock inside the building was unplugged at 3:30 a.m., indicating that probably was the time of the burglary, investigators explained.

Pope Orders Halt In Experiments

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI ordered an end Friday to further experimentation with the Roman Catholic mass. But he left priests a wide choice of masses to celebrate and ended the 1,900-year-old rule that required women to cover their heads in church.

The orders came in the form of a decree titled "Missale Romanum" (Roman Missal) which brings together in the form of a comprehensive altar book all the many changes in the mass instituted since the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

Doctor Loses Suit On Fatal Diagnosis

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three and a half years ago, Donald L. Correll was told he would die within 12 months. He didn't.

Friday, a Superior Court jury awarded the 49-year-old bus driver $40,000 in damages from the doctor who made the fatal diagnosis.

Correll had testified that the doctor's warning had prompted him to quit his job, losing 18 years of seniority and pension rights.

Airwaves Disturb Homing Pigeons

CINCINNATI (AP) — A pigeon racing expert says television and radio signals may be making a directional tenderfoot of the homing pigeon, known for its boomerang-type flight accuracy.

Reports show that the birds flap about in all directions over a broadcast station when "the amperes are turned up," Albert Enzweiler of Cincinnati said in a recent lecture before physics and biology students at Xavier University.

Thousands of the birds, which can return from any point on the compass, have been disappearing without a trace in recent years, Enzweiler reports.

Fire Fighters Called To 3 Grass Blazes; Answer False Alarm

Appleton fire fighters were summoned to three grass fires Sunday.

The fires, none of which caused major damage, were in the 1600 block of Leona Street, a field along S. Weimer Street, and along Briarcliff Drive.

Five units were dispatched to Johnston School late Saturday evening on what turned out to be a false alarm called in by an unknown person.

cluding Supv. Eugene Kloes, Appleton, chairman and Supv. Patrick Mares, Appleton, former chairman of the public property and insurance committee, had encouraged him to proceed.

After Long concluded his explanation, Supv. Herbert Helble, Appleton, commented that "this points up the problem" of committees and committee chairmen not operating within rules.

"Here two committees (actually one was only the committee chairman) have fallen short of their duties," he added.

"Straightened Out"

"Before we get rough with some of the civil service people, we'd better get some of our own county board members straightened out," he added.

Helble noted that he was discouraged with the way the matter had been handled.

Long had told the committee that he was "relying on the people represented in the two areas (the two committees). If he had offended anyone, he added, "I apologize."

However, he defended his need for the equipment and said if the committee did not wish to approve it, he would work with what he now had. He warned that his office's efficiency would be cut down.

Hear Both Sides

When the issue of the two requests arose, Supvs. Russell DeLaHunt, Kaukauna; Harold C. Miller, Town of Grand Chute, and Helble cautioned that before the committee threw around charges and criticism, it should hear both sides of the story.

He urged that "man-to-man" communication is much better than only a letter warning or informing a department head of a committee wish. He said this has led to too much bad publicity for the county board, and created issues where talk could have settled the matter.

Babbitt noted, however, that he wanted to inform the committee on the matter before bringing in Long.

Peking Envisions New People's Wars In Thailand, Burma

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

As the noise of the cultural revolution purge fades away, Red China is turning a good deal of its attention once again to Southeast Asia and the prospect for new "people's wars" there.

The attitude, as expressed in propaganda broadcasts, seems far from that of a regime contemplating accommodations either with its neighbors or with the two superpowers, the United States and the Soviet Union, whom it chooses to call enemies.

A News Analysis

Peking's regime as it is now constructed, ruled by Defense Minister Lin Piao in the name of "Mao Tse-tung's thoughts," has angrily opposed the Vietnam peace talks. Vietnam keeps the Americans pinned down and drains American riches, men and morale.

Hardly had Peking's new postpurge Politburo and Central Committee been installed when Red Chinese propaganda began beating the drum for more and intensified "people's war." The two main targets were Thailand and Burma, both next-door neighbors of the Indochinese peninsula.

Excellent Situation

On Thailand, the propaganda hailed "an excellent situation of the people's war," and revolutionaries who adhere "to the great truth that political power grows out of the barrel of a gun."

On Burma, which shares a long border with Red China, the propaganda extolled revolutionaries who scorn "peaceful transition" as heroes of Mao Tse-tung's thinking.

Should the Vietnam war fade away some day, either Thailand or Burma might serve the Red Chinese as a fruitful area for attempting to bring about a new Vietnam situation. Thailand is an ally of the United States in fighting the Vietnam war. Burma gets help both from the Soviet Union and the United States to hold off a Chinese Communist threat. Both areas would thus make a satisfying target for harassing both the "American Imperialists" and the "Soviet revisionists."

Present prospects of Mao's followers in Burma and Thailand are dismal, barring significant interference from the outside. But such interference cannot be ruled out.

External Forces

So far as Thailand is concerned, while the Bangkok government openly fears what may happen if the Vietnam war ends and 50,000 American troops leave Thai soil, it reflects confidence it can handle the Chinese-inspired insurgency in the northeast. It will seek help only if external forces expand the situation into broader conflict. It would take considerable force, perhaps from Communist Pathet Lao forces across the border in Laos, before the present situation would be so enlarged.

Burma has been handling its own insurgency effectively. The Communist movement is splintered, the ranks of the various factions drastically diminished by their own unremitting intra-party warfare and murderous internal purges.

The top Communist leader, Thakin Than Tun, was assassinated last September by a young Communist in revenge for other purge victims.

Many of the White Flag—pro-Chinese—Communists, including a number of their most important leaders, have been killed or arrested. The latest to die was Aung Gyi, who called himself "Lenin," the victim of a determined Burmese army offensive. The present leader, Thakin Zin, quickly instituted his own systematic executions of rivals.

Political Force

The White Flag Communists are trying to mount a "people's war" behind the facade of what they call the "National Democratic United Front," which they use as a political arm in much the same way as the Viet Cong in Vietnam use the National Liberation Front. Obedient to direction from Peking, the White Flag Communists long ago torpedoed efforts of the government to bring about peace. They have, instead, instituted a widespread reign of terror, not only against government supporters but against Communist factions which disagree with them.

As matters stand at the moment, Peking's inflammatory propaganda to Thailand and Burma is likely to have little effect in strengthening the insurgency movements. But what those governments—along with other governments of South and Southeast Asia—must be worrying about is the day when peace comes to Vietnam.

Harriman Believes Vietnamese Should Solve Own Problems

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vietnamese problems must be solved basically by the Vietnamese themselves, says W. Averell Harriman, who was chief negotiator for President Johnson at the Paris peace talks.

"There never will be a settlement until the Vietnamese sit down together and work it out," he told a news conference recently.

Harriman said he believes the National Liberation Front would have agreed to talk with Saigon's representatives last November if the South Vietnamese had cooperated rather than haggle over the issue of the conference table's shape.

Harriman was here to address the World Affairs Council.

Elaborate Schemes in Transatlantic Air Race

NEW YORK (AP) — Contestants in the great transatlantic air race of 1969 are using elevators, ambulances, antique cars, jet planes, balloons. Anything to cover the distance between the observation deck of the Empire State Building and the top of London's Post Office Tower in the shortest possible time.

One of them claims a new flight record.

Lt. Paul Waterhouse piloted a Royal Navy Phantom jet across the Atlantic Sunday in 5 hours, 4 minutes and 25 seconds. When he landed in London, a Navy spokesman said it was the fastest transatlantic flight ever. His trips to and from the airport took another 26 minutes.

$144,000 in Prizes

The race, sponsored by the London Daily Mail to mark the 50th anniversary of the first nonstop flight over the Atlantic, offers $144,000 in prizes. It has drawn 390 entires in 21 categories.

John Alcock and Arthur Whitten Brown flew a Vickers-Vimy biplane from Newfoundland to a bog near Galway, Ireland on June 14 and 15, 1919, taking 15 hours, 57 minutes.

Some entrants have elaborate schemes for coping with traffic jams, including ambulances with red lights flashing, motorcycle escorts and helicopters. Two entrant used a speedboat to reach a helicopter pad in the middle of London's Thames River.

The race ends next week, with top prizes for the best times in each direction.

Cooper Walker pulled away from the Empire State Building in a 1919 Stutz Bearcat. Walker, a Baltimore travel agent, will finish in a 1919 Rolls Royce, and in between he'll use a horse-drawn coach, six planes and two balloons.

He said he's aiming for the "most meritorious" prize.

Race's Smallest Entry

Among the more daring adventures is Ben Garcia, 32, of East Brunswick, N.J., who left New York's Flushing Airport in the race's smallest entry, a Piper Colt.

"I'm a bit apprehensive," he said after arriving in Saint John, N.B. on the first leg of his trip. "I'll have a problem making the 700-mile hop from Iceland to Ireland."

His 108-horsepower plane has a range of 600 miles, but Garcia said he'd "wait for a good tail wind" in Iceland, climb high and glide to Ireland.

'Poor' John Lennon Purchases $350,000 Pad in the Country

LONDON (AP) — Beatle John Lennon, who complained a month ago he was down to his last $120,000 cash, has bought a $360,000 pad in the country.

It's Tittenhurst Park, a seven-bedroom, 18th century mansion on 72 acres, with four bathrooms, two servants' apartments, four servants' cottages, a gate lodge, a picture gallery, a Tudor-style tea pavilion, four greenhouses, a tennis court, a cricket field and a heated swimming pool.

Lennon, 28, and his Japanese bride, artist Yoko Ono, 34, plan to move in August. They have been living in Lennon's $120,000 Surrey County home.

Police Quell Disturbance

marched down State Street to the city's business district.

Police followed, and the gas flowed into shops and hotels.

Students avoided the ranks of officers, breaking temporarily into fast-moving groups.

At various points on State Street and side streets the students piled up barricades of steel trash containers and set fire to the contents.

Mayor Dyke told an emergency City Council session he would order police to withdraw if the students and hippies would agree to break it up, but complained:

"Almost no one can pin down the groups in terms of who you can talk to.

"It's a very unfortunate situation, a very difficult situation obviously."

Police, with students drifting back toward the university, began clearing streets of debris while some Mifflin residents milled around State Street several blocks away, saying the odor of tear gas was too strong to allow immediate re-occupation of their dwellings.

Edward Nager, a state legislator from Madison, said of Saturday night's action: "It looks like a classic example of overreaction by police to a situation that in itself was very minor."

Nixon Believes Troop Pullouts Are Unwise of progress in the bargaining at Paris rather than progress in terms of moving toward an agreement.

While the evidence disclosed was imprecise the White House sources said the North Vietnamese have raised questions recently about the eventual way in which post-war South Vietnam might be organized and also the problems of possible negotiation between the Communists and the government of South Vietnam.

But White House sources conceded over the weekend that North Vietnam still seems not to have made the basic decision to accept for some years an independent South Vietnam. Without such a decision, officials here believe, a negotiated settlement of the war is impossible.

Nixon's major hopes for the future, therefore, evidently rest more on his confidence in the buildup of South Vietnamese military and political stability and on what he judges to be the declining striking power of the North Vietnamese-Viet Cong forces in South Vietnam.

White House officials said that the enemy clearly has less striking power now than at the time of the Tet offensive a year ago and they predicted it will have even less next year.

In the short range administration officials see a break toward peace in terms of some possible but precisely unpredictable event. They are studying two such events now.

One is the return to Paris of the top North Vietnamese negotiator Le Duc Tho who has been consulting in Hanoi and has also been in contact with Soviet and Chinese Communist policy leaders. U.S. officials believe that Le Duc Tho's return to Paris could signal some important new move by North Vietnam.

A second development is the apparent decline in Communist military operations in South Vietnam. Nixon's top advisers say that the falling off of offensive thrusts by the Reds could have resulted from the political decision in Hanoi but they don't know whether that is in fact true.

48 Courses Offered For Bachelor's Degree

MOUNT ANGEL, Ore. (AP) — Students will be able to take and complete any 48 courses they choose for a bachelor of arts degree at Mount Angel College, beginning next fall.

At present, as do most colleges, Mount Angel prescribes about half of the courses necessary for graduation.

A college spokesman said the change "is a shifting of priority, from what a college thinks a person needs to be educated, to what a student thinks on the matter."

Are B52 Raids Effective? Reports of Damage Withheld

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command is withholding reports of damage the B52 bombers are inflicting in their campaign along the Cambodian border, the heaviest of the Vietnam war.

About 300 of the big bombers have rained $18 million worth of bombs along the frontier in the past two weeks, but there has been no official announcement of any results.

"We have no bomb damage assessment to report," the U.S. briefing officer says each day.

Informants said U.S. forces are constantly assessing the B52 strikes, but information officers for the U.S. Command have been instructed not to discuss damage assessment. The official line is that disclosure of such information would compromise American methods of gathering intelligence.

Official Silence

Some informants are skeptical, however. They said one reason for the official silence is that the U.S. Command fears an unfavorable public reaction to the skimpy results confirmable in relation to the money spent.

"We found some enemy bodies," said one officer, "at least four or five here and there."

But Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, and the Strategic Air Command consider the B52s a vital weapon in the war. Officers say the huge bombers harass enemy troops, deny them sanctuaries, keep them on the run and prevent them from getting organized for an offensive.

"Harassment of troops is our biggest accomplishment," said one B52 officer. "We don't let them get organized."

Three North Vietnamese and Viet Cong divisions are the primary targets in the current campaign. The raids have struck at base camps in War Zone C, including bunker complexes, trenches and stockpiles of munitions and other supplies.

"We're not able to show you enemy bodies killed by the B52s," said one infantry officer. "But they've denied refuge to enemy troops in areas where you'd have to go in with ground troops and ... men killed and wounded."

Four more B52 raids in War Zone C were reported today. Twenty-five Stratofortresses dumped 750 tons of bombs on enemy bunker complexes and storage areas, the U.S. Command reported.

Ground Clash

A ground clash also was reported in War Zone C, 65 miles northwest of Saigon.

Troops of the U.S. 1st Air Calavry Division ran into 150 North Vietnamese who opened fire from bunkers. American fighter-bombers put the enemy to flight after an hour's fight. The bodies of three North Vietnamese were left behind. Four Americans were killed and seven were wounded.

The U.S. Command also announced that five helicopters and one Air National Guard F100 fighter-bomber were lost over the weekend, killing eleven Americans and wounding six.

The reported helicopter losses for the Vietnam war now total 2,595 while the fixed-wing aircraft losses reported are 2,682.

Two of the helicopters were shot down Saturday and two collided Sunday. The collision was the third in 12 days.

Since April 1 at least 50 American helicopters have been shot down and another 26 destroyed in rocket, mortar and ground attacks or in collisions.

Military spokesmen admitted the helicopter losses in this period have been among the heaviest of the war, but they attributed them to the vast scope of operations conducted in the waning weeks of the enemy's spring offensive.

Party Will Go On, Wilson Tells Rebels

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson told the rebels in his Labor Party Sunday they won't divert his government from its task of trying to put the British economy in the black.

Addressing opponents of his antistrike legislation who launched a "Wilson must go" campaign last week, the British leader said: "I know what is going on. I am going on. Your government is going on.

"I do not intend to allow this government to be diverted from its task by petty divisions on policies, procedures and personalities."

He got rousing cheers from 1,500 supporters at a party rally, drowning out scattered heckling.

Wilson warned rebellious factions in the party: "If this Labor movement insists on weakening itself by divisive action, the only beneficiaries will be the Tories, and I mean the possibility of a Tory government elected as a result of our divisions."

Unpopular austerity measures and proposed legislation to curb wildcat strikes are "priorities of government against an economic background, against a world background, which has been changing rapidly for the past 20 years," Wilson said

"The Tories never faced up to that change. That is why we have inherited the continuing problem of paying our way in the world," he declared

At Lowest Ebb

The government's restrictions on wages and spending have brought the Labor government's popularity to its lowest ebb in five years. And its attempt to curb crippling wildcat strikes has enraged trade unionists and leftwingers who get up in arms at any interference with union rights

Labor stalwarts appear to be in for a major disaster this week in the election of local councilmen in 320 boroughs and more than 400 urban districts of England and Wales, and in 196 boroughs in Scotland. Forecasts indicate the party stands to lose control of every British city of more than 100,000 population, its worst showing in 38 years.

The Labor Party strength has declined steadily since 1964, losing 2,750 seats on local councils.

General's Record Up for Challenge

SCOTT AIR FORCE BASE, Ill. (AP) — Brig. Gen. Paul R. Stoney, 50, has issued a challenge to the 50,000 officers and airmen under his command:

"Beat my record for the three-mile run and you have an automatic exclusion from individual physical fitness testing."

The feat, however, may not be all that simple for the youngsters of the Air Force Communications Service, of which Stoney is vice commander.

The general, a former trackman at Emory University, runs from two to five miles a day and has been clocked at 21 minutes in the three-mile run.

Navy Destroyer Named After Harold E. Holt, Late Australian Leader

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP) — The Navy is equipping for duty the destroyer escort USS Harhold E. Holt, named for the late Australian prime minister.

Holt died Dec. 17, 1967 when he waes swept out to sea while swimming near Melbourne. The vessel was christened Saturday by his widow, Dame Zara Bate, now married to a member of the Australian Parliament. It is the first U.S. Navy ship named for a contemporary foreign leader.

Fitting out will take several months, the Navy said, with sea trials planned for several months after the ship is fully equipped

The 4,000-ton ship will carry a complement of 17 officers and 213 men. It is designed for anti-submarine warfare.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Play Home Target Game With Chicken Feather Darts

BY CAPPY DICK

Wing or tail feathers of a chicken, fitted into large, flat buttons as in Figure 1, form the darts for a homemade target game that is fun to make the play. There must be one dart for each player.

A dart is made by sticking the quill of a feather into one of the holes in a button. If the quill projects beyond the flat surface of the button, cut off enough to permit the button to rest flat on the table with the feather upright. A drop of glue will help hold the quill and button together.

A heavy button will give the best result because it will not easily allow the feather to topple over.

Paper Target

The target (figure 2) is a sheet of wrapping paper with four rings drawn on it with crayon. Print point values as shown. Spread the paper on a table.

The players stand at a given distance from the table and take turns tossing their darts to land on the target and remain upright, scoring the point values of the rings in which they land. If a dart lands on a line it scores nothing. If a dart that landed upright is toppled over by another dart, it scores no points.

After each player has tossed his dart, the scores should be written on paper. After 10 turns the player with the highest total wins the game.

Words often misused: Do not say, "I hung one picture over the other," if you really mean ABOVE the other. "Over" implies over its surface.

Often mispronounced: Noblesse oblige. Pronounce no-bless-oh-bleezh, accents on second and fourth syllables.

Often misspelled: Cite (to refer to). Sight (vision). Site (position).

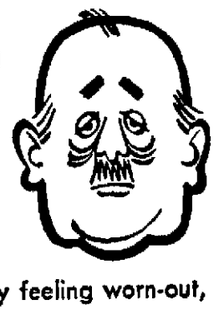

Synonyms: Princely, imperial, munificent, magnificent, superb, august, regal, royal, supreme.

Word study: "Use a word three times and it is yours." Let us increase our vocabulary by mastering one word each day. Today's word: SCANT; barely enough; short of a specified measure. "She had only a scant teaspoonful of sugar on hand."

Top Records On Grammy Show Tonight

BY TV SCOUT

7-8 Channel 5 — The Best On Record: The Grammy wards Show has to be the best of the many awards telecasts for the most basic of reasons. The awards have already been presented and the purpose of the program is to present the reasons the individual stars have won. In short, each winner comes to perform the recording that won him (or her) a Grammy from the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences. The only award saved for tonight is Record of the Year, and the five nominees, performing their hits, are Glen Campbell ("Wichita Lineman"), The Beatles ("Hey Jude"), Jeannie C. Riley ("Harper Valley P.T.A."), Simon and Garfunkel ("Mrs. Robinson") and Bobby Goldsboro ("Honey").

6:30-7 Channel 5 — Tony is victimized on I Dream of Jeannie, but inadvertently, Jeannie's mother had concocted some magic sweets that produced great strength. Tony tries to reproduce the recipe, coming up with a tasty morsel that destroys inhibitions.

9-10 Channel 2 — Perry Como turns up on The Carol Burnett Show and ever so casually takes over. Como sings "Sunshine Wine" and "Here's That Rainy Day," then joins Carol in a medley. Tim Conway is an added guest, playing a flustered suitor trying to impress his girl's sophisticated family.

Actor Keeps Working Despite Cast on Leg

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Rip Torn, injured in a motorcycle accident, is in Mount Sinai Hospital wearing a cast from his ankle to his thigh—but it won't stop him from starring in the film, "Tropic of Cancer." Torn will play the scenes in his cast until he can walk again, according to Paramount Pictures. Filming, which was set to begin in Paris May 6, was set back two days because of the accident.

Restaurant Chain Plans Facility on College Avenue

Appleton and Fond du Lac interests are completing negotiations for construction of a new restaurant on a 25,000 square foot tract at 719-729 W. College Avenue.

Attorney William Schuh said today an announcement would be forthcoming sometime next week on the Lum's Restaurant franchise to be constructed and opened here this summer.

The site of the proposed downtown eating facility is the southwest corner of Richmond Street and W. College Avenue — the restaurant fronting on the avenue.

Because of the need for a variance from the zoning law, promoters of the project recently obtained approval from the board of appeals to begin construction.

The restaurant, patterned after others in the nationwide chain, will have a large parking lot.

In addition to the property already cleared, developers intend to raze the used furniture building which will compromise the west boundary of the property.

Another building has been purchased on Locust Street to serve as a traffic carrier and eliminate any possibility of a bottleneck near the Richmond Street-College Avenue intersection.

BEFORE THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION OF WISCONSIN

Application of Seymour Transfer Lines, Inc., for Authority to Increase Its Interurban Bus Fares and an Investigation of Alleged Abandonment of Certain Operations (MC-1814)

NOTICE OF INVESTIGATION AND HEARING

Seymour Transfer Lines, Inc., 140 East Wisconsin Avenue, Seymour 54163, Outagamie County, on February 3, 1969 filed an application with the Commission for authority under sections 194.18, 194.19, and 194.22, Wisconsin Statutes, to increase fares on applicant's interurban bus operations 10% over present fares except where service is provided between points also served by Greyhound Lines, Inc., where fares would be held to those charged by Greyhound. Applicant has authority as a common motor carrier of passengers under certificate CC-57 between Green Bay, Seymour, Appleton, Waupaca, Stevens Point, Wisconsin Rapids, Tomah, and La Crosse and certain intermediate points.

The Commission's transportation division requested applicant to supply operating statements for 1968 in support of the application. On March 4, 1969 the carrier furnished the requested statements which were amended on March 19, 1969.

The proposed supplement submitted with the carrier's application proposes to increase all passenger fares including the fares on that segment of its common motor carrier of passengers authority on Highway 16 between Sparta and La Crosse and that portion of Highway 21 between its junction with highway 12 and Sparta. The carrier's tariff names fares between Tomah and La Crosse and points intermediate thereto. The carrier's tarrifs also publish fares between La Crosse, Wisconsin and Green Bay, including fares from and to intermediate points. The carrier's operating schedule on file with this Commission since August 31, 1967 indicates that by special reference passengers traveling between Tomah and La Crosse are transported via Hiawatha Coaches. An investigator from the Department of Transportation, Division of Motor Vehicles, Bureau of Enforcement, has stated in his report dated March 18, 1969 that the Seymour Transfer Lines had not actually operated the segment of authority between Tomah and La Crosse for approximately 6 years.

The investigator's report is quite detailed in support of his investigation. . . .

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Commission will investigate the matters herein under section 194.07, 194.18, 194.19, 194.22, and 194.26, Wisconsin Statutes, and will hold public hearing thereon in the City Hall at Tomah on May 19, 1969 at 11 a.m.

Dated at Madison, Wisconsin May 1, 1969.

By the Commission.

"When I was in high school I thought a hundred dollars a week was big money".

Maybe it was—then.
But not now. Now you want more — a new car, a great vacation, maybe someday even a home of your own.
And you know you're not going to get them sticking with the job you have.
So you decide to get something new, something better.
Good pay? Sure you want that. But you want other things, too: A little respect so you don't have to mumble when someone asks what you do for a living. And something with a future. The chance to earn more. To get someplace. To be someone.
Now if you could only get that break, the fresh start . . .
Sound a little bit like you talking? Good. Because we can give you that break, that fresh start. We can give you the opportunity to become a computer programmer — a booming career, with over 25,000 job vacancies just waiting for people with the right training.
What you need is the desire and the aptitude. You supply the desire and we'll supply a test that tells us quickly and accurately if you have the aptitude. Who are we? ECPI Electronic Computer Programming Institute, a major education institution with over 100 training centers in the U.S., and Canada.
We are completely equipped with IBM machines, textbooks, and a staff of teachers who are professionals. We also have a free placement service that can help you find one of those 25,000 jobs after you graduate.
That's what we have. But do you have what it takes to be a computer programmer? If you're between 18 and 40 and a high school graduate the answer is probably yes. But make sure. Clip the coupon and send for your free sample test. It's your first step toward making that fresh start.

• Over 100 ECPI schools coast to coast.

Police Quiet UW Students, Hippies

Brutality Charged by Protesters

MADISON (AP) — Hundreds of University of Wisconsin students erected flaming street barricades early today in sympathy with hippies whose attempts to hold a block dance were smashed by police using clubs and irritant gas.

The students poured out of dormitories and fraternity houses following two nights of battle between the hippies and the police and surged into the business area, where for several hours they defied efforts to disperse them.

More than 1,000 young persons were involved before scattered disorders subsided. The throngs also included hippies and scores of their fellow student residents of an off-campus neighborhood known as the Mifflin Street hippie haven.

The weekend of disorder resulted in about 80 arrests. Two of those detained were city aldermen, Paul Soglin and Eugene Parks. Soglin, 24, accused the police of shearing off his long hair before he was freed on bond.

Tries to Intervene

Soglin, a university student known as "the hippie alderman," said he was arrested when he tried to intervene between the police and hippies and declared:

"The brutality that I saw on the part of the police made Chicago and past demonstrations in Madison look like panty raids."

Nearly two hours after midnight, Mayor William Dyke, who toured the troubled areas in a police car, described the city of 175,000 as relatively quiet. But he said he would have to consider ordering a curfew to try to head off any further outbursts.

Street Dance

The trouble began Saturday when police began breaking up barricades which residents of a Mifflin Street hippie neighborhood had used to mark the site of a planned street dance several blocks from the University of Wisconsin campus. The police said the dance would block traffic.

Police, having been pelted with occasional eggs and empty soft drink cans during an hour-long standoff, threatened to use gas to disperse the group. The announcement was greeted by a storm of rocks, bricks and bottles.

Police waded in, nightsticks flailing, and began making arrests. Some officers threw bricks back at the crowd. When police moved back, and the gas blew away, hippies quickly rebuilt their barricades.

Irritant Gas

A Sunday peace was shattered when officers waded into an afternoon gathering of about 300 young residents of the Mifflin Street neighborhood. Arrests resumed, most for unlawful assembly.

Authorities again used the irritant gas which they called "pepper gas."

Sunday night, the Mifflin Street residents moved out of their gas-choked neighborhood and began picketing the Dane County jail to protest police actions.

The throng swelled to more than 1,000 when the students joined forces with the Mifflin Street residents.

As more clouds of the gas rolled down streets—some of it from canisters and some ejected from containers carried by police—hundreds of students

War Games

DAU TIENG, Vietnam (AP) —A U.S .battalion commander who charged competitive points against platoons losing men in combat says he dropped this part of the program after learning his men were opposed to it.

Lt. Col James T. Bradley, a 40-year-old Korean War veteran from Arlington, Va., started the competition three weeks ago. He said it was designed to prevent needless casualties among his men, some of whom just weren't being alert."

Platoons of the 25th Infantry Division's 1st Battalion, 27th Infantry were awarded points for enemy troops killed, weapons captured and rice caches discovered. Platoons that suffered battle casualties lost points. The winning platoons received two or three days off at a rest center.

One of Bradley's infantrymen who didn't think much of the contest, especially the points deducted for casualties, wrote home:

"The morale is low enough without a stupid contest that only shows us what little is thought of what we're already doing. We don't need to be playing games in a combat zone...This contest has shown us what pawns we are. I wouldn't like to think that because one of my buddies gets killed it only means we lose points."

Bradley said anyone who felt that way missed what he wanted to emphasize—stay alert and live.

Despite the constant danger, Bradley said, he thinks combat troops sometimes get careless. They become somewhat complacent after being in Vietnam for a while," he said. "They get exposed to combat, survive without injury and become a little bit more careless."

The battalion's operations officer, Maj. Jerry Holliday of Memphis, Tenn., said the point deduction system was decided on after one company had constant mishaps with booby traps in the enemy-infested Bo Loi Woods and Michelin rubber plantation northwest of Saigon, where the battalion operates.

"They were stumbling over booby traps on a daily basis," Holliday said. "They suffered something like nine casualties in two or three days. It was pure carelessness.

"The program was almost specifically designed to prevent that, to make the platoon leader, the platoon sergeant, the squad leader make their men be more careful. The whole name of the game was to keep the men from making needless mistakes."

Although Bradley stopped deducting points for American casualties, he's still giving them for kills and captures.

He said the program is temporary and will run for a week more, but he may try it again in three months if he feels it is needed then.

Fortas Denies Wrongdoing in Money Offer From Ex-Client

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Abe Fortas received a $20,000 fee from the family of industrialist Louis E. Wolfson three months after he was seated on the Supreme Court and did not return the money until 11 months later, according to Life magazine.

Fortas confirmed Sunday that he was offered and considered a fee but flatly denied that he accepted or that he stepped in to help Wolfson, a former client who went to jail last month on a federal securities law conviction.

The justice said he returned the fee, "tendered" in 1966, "with my thanks." His statement, issued at the court after he had read an advance copy of the Life article, did not say how large the fee was or when he returned it.

Life's account was that the Wolfson Family Foundation, a tax-free charitable organization set up by Wolfson and his brothers, paid Fortas $20,000 in January 1966, three months after he was sworn in as an associate justice.

The article, by William Lambert, said Fortas returned the money in December 1966, three months after the financial tycoon and his longtime business associate, Elkin Gerbert, had been indicted on charges of selling a large block of unregistered stock in a company Wolfson and Gerbert controlled.

Life said "whatever services he may or may not have rendered to the foundation, Justice Fortas' name was being dropped in strategic places by Wolfson and his business associate, Elkin Gerbert, in their effort to stay out of prison."

The Justice Department, meanwhile, said it "is aware of the contents of the article in Life magazine and currently has the matter under consideration."

Fortas' statement, issued two hours after he had driven to the court on an otherwise quiet Sunday, began: "I have not accepted any fee or emolument from Mr. Wolfson or the Wolfson Family Foundation or any related person or group."

Fortas went on to say he met Wolfson in 1965, before going on the Court, after a Wolfson company had retained his old law firm.

The justice said the foundation offered the fee "in the hope that I would find time and could undertake, consistently with my court obligations, research functions, studies and writings connected with the work of the foundation."

He added: "Concluding that I could not undertake the assignment, I returned the fee with my thanks."

Fortas said that at no time since he became a justice did he give Wolfson or any of his family, associates, foundations or interests any legal advice or services.

The statement said the foundation is engaged in "significant and commendable work" in the field of harmonious racial and religious relations.

Wolfson Fortas

Life's version said that Fortas flew down to Wolfson's horse-breeding farm near Ocala, Fla., in June 1966 and was his guest when the Securities and Exchange Commission's "long-feared investigation finally came to public attention."

The magazine also said Wolfson had told Alexander Rittmaster, a business associate, in July that Fortas was "furious" because the SEC "had reneged on a pledge to give the Wolfson group another hearing."

And, Life said, Gerbert had reassured Rittmaster "there was no need to worry, that Fortas had been at the horse farm to discuss the SEC matter and that it was to be taken care of."

Rittmaster, named a codefendant, testified for the government.

The magazine said "it is not easy to pin down the exact extent of the Wolfson-Fortas relationship, nor has Life uncovered evidence making possible a charge that Wolfson hired Fortas to fix his case."

Last year President Johnson nominated Fortas to succeed Earl Warren as chief justice. The Senate Judiciary Committee received testimony that while on the court Fortas had accepted $15,000 to conduct a summer seminar at the American University law school.

The nomination eventually was withdrawn as Fortas faced obvious defeat at the hands of senators who criticized either his conduct or the court's liberal stance.

Pressure in Congress

President Wants to Sell Idea Troop Pullouts Are Unwise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, under increasing congressional pressure for a quick start in some U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam, evidently has begun a campaign to convince the public such a move is inadvisible at this time.

Following demands for some sort of troop pullback from two leading Republican senators late last week, top administration officials spent the weekend explaining Nixon's position.

In talks with reporters over the weekend, White House officials said the President has a carefully worked out strategy that he feels still shows sign of getting somewhere and would be disrupted by starting troop withdrawals now.

Nixon's argument against any immediate withdrawal rests primarily on these points, as defined by the White House officials:

1. There has been some progress in bargaining with the Communists at the Paris Peace talks, although not in terms of moving toward agreement on ending the war.

2. Nixon is planning some new moves with respect to Vietnam which he will take when he considers the time is right.

3. South Vietnam has been gaining steadily in both military and political strength for months now and its capacity to assume more of the war later will allow Nixon to withdraw some U.S. troops in the months ahead if he chooses to do so. He has no deadline, however, for withdrawal.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird also outlined the administration's position for a cutback in the American fighting force in a Saturday news conference at Warrenton, Va.

He said if any of these three positions are met then a withdrawal could begin:

1. Agreement on mutual withdrawal of U.S. and North Vietnamese troops.

2. Sufficient improvement of South Vietnamese forces so they can take over a major part of the fighting.

3. The level of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese activity is "substantially reduced" in South Vietnam.

Until Saturday, Laird had always declined to discuss the conditions for troop withdrawals. But his outlining of the points plus the weekend sessions the White House officials bad with newsmen indicated Nixon was concerned with the public effect of the recent demands for a quick beginning of the troop withdrawals.

Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, the No. 2 Republican in the Senate, Friday called for the return home of a substantial block of U.S. troops as a means of inducing North Vietnam to begin serious bargaining in Paris.

A day earlier Sen. George Aiken of Vermont, top Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, had called on the Nixon administration to begin pulling forces out.

There have been other calls over the last several months for a troop cutback.

White House officials said, however, President Nixon is determined to stick to his own plan.

Although administration officials have seemed hard pressed to strike an optimistic note about the Paris talks, the administration idea seems to be not to appear discouraged about the situation.

This apparently is why the evidence cited by White House sources dealt with the question

Kohler Corp. Involved

Lawsuits to Cost Billions of Dollars?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of the nation's largest makers of plumbing fixtures face the possible loss of billions of dollars from damage suits by customers who bought their equipment at what a federal grand jury found were illegally fixed prices.

Nearly every state and numerous cities already have filed suits seeking treble damages against the three firms convicted of criminal price fixing last week and 12 other companies who earlier pleaded no contest to the charges, according to a Justice Department official.

Besides the state and local governments, other major purchasers of plumbing fixtures — building contractors and even individual homeowners—are expected to file suits, the official added.

Under federal law, those found guilty of criminal violations of antitrust acts are liable, if convicted in subsequent civil suits, for treble damagee.

The prospect for the mammoth damages arose Friday when a federal jury in Pittsburgh found the Borg Warner Corp., of Chicago; American Standard Corp., New York; and the Kohler Corp., Kohler, Wis., guilty of illegally raising and pre-setting the price for bathtubs and other bathroom fixtures.

Three officials of the firms also were found quilty.

The Justice Department prosecutor for the case, John C. Fricano, said "With the guilty verdict, they don't have to prove their case."

The 15 companies and eight officials were accused in federal indictments Oct. 6, 1966 with fixing the prices on all fixtures they sold between September 1962 and 1966.

The government said the total sales amounted to $1 billion or 98 per cent of the enameled cast iron plumbing fixtures and 80 per cent of the vitreous china plumbing fixtures sold in this country during the period.

The guilty verdict was returned Friday, and U.S. Dist. Court Judge Louis Rosenberg ordered a pre-sentencing investigation before setting penalties.

'Color Is No Excuse'—Justice Marshall

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The first Negro member of the U.S. Supreme Court says black militants who defy the law should be made to face the consequences.

"Anarchy is anarchy," Justice Thurgood Marshall said Sunday, "and it makes no difference who practices it, it is bad; it is punishable and it should be punished."

Marshall spoke at the centennial celebration of predominantly Negro Dillard University.

"You can't use color for an excuse for not doing what you should be doing," he declared.

"Race is not an excuse for not keeping up your house properly nor is race an excuse for not keeping your children in school, even though they may still be segregated."

Marshall said he realized that "so far as race problems and minority rights go, the problems are not yet solved and I have no idea when they will be, but there has been some progress."

"The seeds are here," he added. "But nothing will be settled with guns, firebombs or rocks. The country can't survive if the perpetrators go unpunished. It's that simple."

Urging Negroes to reject black militant leadership, Marshall said:

"We should stand up and say, 'Look, man, you do what you want to do and I'll do what I want to do. But don't tell me I have to do what you want me to do just because you said it."

The associate justice called for leadership through education and said student demanding black studies and African culture should not discard other studies and cultures.

"You are not going to compete in the world until you have training exactly like everyone else, and, hopefully, better," he said. "Because when you're a Negro, you've got to be better."

UW's Credit Transfer Policy Irks Lawmakers

Assembly Wants Interchangeability Rule Between the Two State University Systems

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The legislature is likely to require a change in the rules imposed by state higher education administrators about the transferability of student credits between the University of Wisconsin and the state universtiy systems, according to a vote in the assembly last week.

By a margin of nearly two to one, and after debate that showed angry criticism about the more restrictive policies of the University of Wisconsin and its branches, assemblymen gave preliminary approval to a bill that would set new rules on credit transfers of students.

The assembly amended the original bill considerably, declining to order either system to accept wtihout restriction the credits granted to students for studies in the other. But as the measure now stands, pending a final vote, all freshman and sophomore credits would be automatically accepted by either of the systems, and all credits with grades of above "C".

Floor discussions, extending over two days, showed considerable indignation among members about what they described as arbitrary transfer rules imposed by the University of Wisconsin to govern the admission of students switching from the stae universities. Nothing was said about restrictions of the latter upon the transfers of students from the University of Wisconsin, which apparently are less frequent.

Both systems had formally opposed the legislative bill at public hearings, and their representatives hovered in legislative corridors as the debate went on and evidently had some part in the working out of the amendments.

Assemblyman Byron Wackett of Watertown, one of the leaders of the assembly Republican majority, said the transfer problem is one that should logically have had study and recommendation from the Coordinating Council for Higher Education But it has not involved itself and "it doesn't know what is going on", he complained

Some legislators asked for modification of the original bill guaranteeing credit transfers, noting that some credits, as toward a teaching degree, are not relevant to a course of study in another institution on another subject

Critics of the University of Wisconsin argued that the state universities, which have a considerably higher ratio of professors in the classrooms, should not be discriminated against by the UW which they said relies upon graduate students for about two-thirds of all undergraduate instruction hours.

Assemblyman Russell Olson of rural Kenosha County warned that the stubbornness of he UW on the credit transfer question will generate pressure for the consolidation of the two university systems, with automatic transfer privileges between institutions.

Assemblyman Jack Stinhilber of Oshkosh related a personal experience

"Twenty years ago I enrolled at the state university at Oshkosh and stayed a year. I earned 31 credits. Then I transferred to the University of Wisconsin at Madison, and they cancelled one of the credits. When I asked why, they said there was a rule, without elaboration. Now 20 years later I discover that they haven't changed No wonder some of the students are restless and frustrated"

Dr. Gerlach plans frequent trips to Madison while engaged on an intensive study of contemporary German literature.

Long plans to spend the summer at the University of Iowa completing work on his dissertation, a study of the demand for medical care services.

Wisconsin VTE Board Limits Liberal Arts

Fox Valley Schools Are Not Affected by Enrollment Ruling

MADISON —The Wisconsin Board of Vocational, Technical and Adult Education has taken steps to prevent liberal arts programs "from running away" with curriculum at its vocational schools, but for the present this does not involve VTE-12.

The state board voted Tuesday at the request of Clarence Greiber, director of vocational education, to limit to 25 per cent of enrollments the number of students allowed to take liberal arts college transfer courses.

Such transfer courses are offered only at two technical schools—Milwaukee and Madison, at this time. Both are known as technical colleges. Fox Valley Technical Institutes have no such courses presently, according to Stanley Spanbauer, head of instructional services for the district.

"There are no plans at this time to institute such courses," said Spanbauer, adding, "and I hope we don't get any."

According to the state statutes, communities of 150,000 or more may offer liberal arts courses in their technical schools which are transferrable to liberal arts colleges.

Because of some of the advantages, such as lower cost, the two technical schools now offering such courses have been swamped with applicants, which the current ruling of the board will curtail.

Meanwhlie, the assembly is being asked to consider a bill which would prohibit the vocational schools from offering any college transfer courses at all. The measure was scheduled for a hearing today.

The state VTE board voted to ask legislators to reconsider the joint finance committee's suggested reduction in the vocational system's 1969-71 budget requests.

The committee has recommended reductions in scholarship programs and state aid.

Democrats in 6th, 7th Districts Hold Caucuses

New Coalition Scores Victory In Resolution

MARSHFIELD (AP) — The New Democratic Coalition showed up Sunday for a caucus of Democrats in the 7th Congressional District, and scored a victory against what was called a "trend toward repression."

Delegates approved by voice vote a coalition-sponsored resolution expressing concern over repression of peaceful dissent.

But delegates did not accept the resolution until an amendment had been made which read: "That campus revolutionaries who would deny the democratic process be controlled by the designated campus officials."

In 30 States

The coalition, organized in more than 30 states after the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago, has a Wisconsin branch which announced plans earlier this year for becoming influential in party affairs at the grass-roots level.

Sunday's resolution was sponsored by a coalition group calling itself the New Democratic Coalition of Marathon County.

Lawrence Dahl, a farmer from Tigerton, was elected district chairman by the Democrats. Ed Riegert of rural Stetsonville was named vice chairman.

Mrs. Betty Pappe of Marshfield was chosen treasurer, and Mrs. Audrey Jacowski of Almond was re-elected secretary.

The caucus took no action on a resolution calling for backing of a proposal by Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., for reducing Wisconsin's voting age to 18. Obey submitted the recommendation while he was a state assemblyman.

Two Resolutions

The dissent resolution said there is "a growing movement in this country for the repression of peaceful dissent, particularly on campus and this movement is seen in reduced appropriations for state universities and the use of military and draft laws to quiet dissent."

Another resolution, similar to one adopted earlier this year by Wisconsin Young Democrats during a Green Bay convention, criticized plans of the Nixon administration for limited deployment of an antiballistics missile system.

The resolution said the AMB project "could well spark a new spiral in the arms race and strengthen the voice of militaristic elements within the Soviet Union."

Statewide Honor

Ariens President Top Businessman

BRILLON — The president of the Ariens Co. was designated Sunday as Wisconsin's small business "man of the year" for 1969.

Mando S. Ariens will appear at a breakfast forum at Milwaukee Friday to receive the award from Gov. Warren P. Knowles. The breakfast forum is sponsored each year by the Bank of Milwaukee and Trust Co., Milwaukee.

Ariens' firm is a land and garden equipment company which has established a network of over 6,000 dealers throughout the nation. It is a major Brillion employer, with over 300 people on its payroll.

Banker Pleased

Richard G. Jacobus, bank president, said he was very pleased with the choice. Of Ariens, he added: "He certainly stands out in the State of Wisconsin because of his achievements in leadership, contributions to the agriculture equipment industry and, most important, his devotion to promoting the rugged, individualistic, pioneering spirit that has made America great."

After Ariens graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1932, he, his father, the late Henry Ariens, and two brothers, started the firm. It is credited with developing the first American-made rotary tiller.

Ariens now produces snowmobiles, tractors, riding mowers, garden tillers, snow throwers and power mowers.

Ariens was vice president, general manager and chief engineer of the firm until 1956 when he was elected president.

Foundation Created

The company created the Ariens foundation in 1967 to foster academic and vocational education in Wisconsin. The first major project was a gift of the first Co-operative Vocational School in the nation to the Brillion school district. Two other firms participated in the more than $100,000 gift, and the Ariens Co. houses elementary school grades.

Ariens himself has been active in the community. He has been a member of the American Society of Metals for 38 years and equally active in industrial organizations. He is a major supporter of St. Norbert College, De Pere.

He was president of the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute in 1965 and 1966 and won national recognition as a spokesman for the industry.

Valley Youths Are Named to Academies

Appointments Go to Black Creek, Appleton Students

Two more youths from the Valley have received appointments to military academies.

David F. Gage, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence R. Gage, 744 Front St., Appleton, has been appointed to the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, and Robert L. Schnabl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Schnabl, route 1, Black Creek, to the U.S. Military Academy, West Point.

Gage's appointment came from the secretary of the Navy, through a recommendation by the academic board of the Naval Academy. Schnabl won his appointment through tests.

Schnabl is a member of the National Honor Society and has consistently been on the high honor roll during his high school career. He has been chosen as valedictorian of his graduating class. He also is a member of the Latin and Science Club, and for four years has served as commentator at St. Mary's Church.

Gage, a senior at Xavier High School, is president of the student council, co-president of the ski club, a member of the Pep and Math clubs and the YMCA Youth Council. He was named to the National Honor Society in his junior year and this year was voted outstanding teen-ager in America.

Others from the eighth congressional district to win appointments to the Military Academy include Markham E. McCorkle, Pembine; Peter F. Stiller and Joseph P. Silvers, Green Bay, and Daniel A. Dolan, Peshtigo.

McCarthyite Wins Position As Chairman

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

SHEBOYGAN — After hearing repeated urgent pleas for unity, caucusing 6th District Democrats chose a McCarthyite for chairman and put his opponent, a Humphrey man, in the No. 2 spot of leadership.

But when the caucus here Sunday turned to the task of grinding out resolutions they split along the same lines as those that divided the pro-and anti-administration Democrats in last hear's presidential elections.

In virtually every case, the "new" Democrats showed superior strength.

Gordon Loehr, Fond du Lac Meat Cutters Union business agent who was chairman of his local Eugene McCarthy organization and later worked in Indiana for the Minnesota Senator, was elected chairman on a 61-39 secret ballot.

Named Vice Chairman

His opponent, Gordon Eichstedt, West Bend, who first supported President Johnson and later Vice President Hubert Humphrey, was elected first vice chairman without opposition. Eichstedt is also a union official, president of his Allied Industrial Workers local at a West Bend manufacturing plant.

Loehr has been Fond du Lac County party chairman, Eichstedt Washington County chairman.

For the second vice chairmanship former Winnebago County Chairman William Wingren lost out in what was described as a close election to another McCarthyite, Don Belleau of the Ozaukee County delegation.

At least two of the caucus speakers emerged from the ensuing resolution battles looking like prophets.

Harvey Kitzman, Milwaukee, Region 10 United Auto Workers representative and candidate for state party delegate-at-large, told the caucus as it opened, "this is a liberal state," having liberals among its voters. Then he added, "all we've got to do is get them to work together."

Oldest Party

He and most other speakers including Loehr and Eichstedt, downplayed divisions in party ranks. James Wimmer, state party chairman told delegates after the election of officers, "I don't thing unity is the highest virtue." He said the Democratic Party is the nation's oldest political party because it has "maintained its forums open" for debate. Debate within the

McCarthy Widow Scoffs

'Poison' Claim Refuted

The widow of the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy this morning termed as "ridiculous" the suggestion that her late husband was poisoned.

Mrs. Joseph Minetti, Washington, D.C., now the wife of a Federal Communications Commission official, made the comment in reaction to statements made Sunday at the ceremonies in Appleton of the 12th anniversary of McCarthy's death.

She said that it's "so ridiculous that it is not worthy of comment," when asked to comment this morning by a member of The Post-Crescent's Washington Bureau.

Samuel Murray, Milwaukee, vice president of the McCarthy Foundation and president of the Friends of McCarthy, attempted Sunday during a memorial program at the Outagamie County Court before about 50 people to stimulate an investigation into the death of the controversial Republican senator.

Murray asked "why no autopsy was performed at the time of death despite laws in the State of Maryland which authorize an autopsy when death is caused by suspicious or unusual means."

The senator's death certificate listed acute hepatitis.

Murray urged authorities in Outagamie County and Maryland to investigate the death.

"A mist still enshrouds the fact of McCarthy's death," Murray said.

(No autopsy was necessary in McCarthy's death because he died while under the care of a medical doctor. He died at Bethesda Naval Hospital in Bethesda, Md., outside of Washington, D. C.)

Graveside ceremonies at St. Mary's Cemetery preceded the memorial program which marked the 12th anniversary of the Wisconsin senator's death.

Murray, in his talk, said that McCarthy, President John F. Kennedy and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy died "because they knew who was in the conspiracy to destroy and betray us."

party, "if you believe in coalition politics," said Wimmer, "is the only effective way" to meet the party's challenges.

Of 18 resolutions, five proved particularly troublesome They dealt with campus unrest, the Vietnam war, shifting the total burden for welfare programs to the federal government, making birth control information and means available to all citizens, and admitting college democrats to county, as well as campus party units. All but the welfare measure passed, some after extensive amending. The welfare resolution was tabled.

Vietnam Tangle

On Vietnam, the party emerged from one of the day's frequent parliamentary tangles to adopt a request for the Republican Nixon administration to seek United Nations implementation of the 1954 Geneva Convention. This would include a cease-fire and plebiscite election.

Adopted on a divided vote, the resolution fared better than an alternative offered by members of the Sheboygan County party, calling for immediate withdrawal of American troops. A spokesman for the resolutions committee said the two measures were substantially the same in intent, that the alternative produced only a difference in "semantics." It lost with about three votes for every four backing the original version.

The battle over a resolution urging a state party constitution change to allow college students to join regular county party units in the area where they attend school turned into a wrangle between "fat cats" and "young punks."

Wingren used both terms to describe the divisions, amid recollections by several delegates of a 1964 caucus "takeover" by a busload of Oshkosh State University students. Opponents of the resolution conjured up visions of its being the instrument for similar maneuvers in the future.

A resolution supporting "those legislators who are acting with reason and calmess in trying to find and meet the causes of campus unrest" passed after lengthy debate over what reasons prompt student uprisings.

Other resolutions supported the boycott of California grapes in sympathy with migrant workers' efforts to unionize; urged extention of labor laws to cover farm workers; opposed the Nixon administration's missile defense system; urge cutting off tax advantages to non-farm corporations operating farms; supported the right of 18-year-olds to vote; opposed Wisconsin Republican legislators' budget-cutting methods, and took stands favoring more liberal social-welfare and civil rights laws and practices.

Sharp Increases Seen in Green Bay Economic District

Fox Cities Included in Forecast Of Population, Economic Growth

Sharp increases in population, employment and earnings per worker are projected between now and the year 2000 — subject to periodic revision — for the Green Bay economic district, which includes the Fox Cities.

The Office of Business Economics (OBE), of the U.S. Department of Commerce, recently completed the latest districting effort and included the entire Fox Valley and northeastern Wisconsin in the Green Bay OBE district.

Such districts, according to the latest newsletter of the Wisconsin Division of Economic Development released today, make it simpler to assess market potential of new products, for example, or to plan public facilities.

The latest districting effort, according to the state agency, was one of the most ambitious and costly. It was done in conjunction with a study for the Water Resources Council.

Some parts of the state, according to the OBE district boundaries, are joined with areas in neighboring states.

1.2 Million

The report and projections, however, show the Green Bay district to have an estimated 1.2 million population in 30 years — the second largest in Wisconsin and exceeding the Madison area.

For the period 1960 to 2000, the OBE showed the Green Bay district with a 45 per cent population increase. The Milwaukee OBE district would have an 85 per cent increase.

Madison and Wausau districts also would have sizable population increases, but they are not as large in area as the Green Bay OBE district.

When it comes to forecasts on earnings per worker, the Green Bay district is expected to have a 205 per cent increase over the next 30 years.

The Green Bay district also will be one of the larger employment areas in the state, based on the 1960-2000 predictions, with a 53 per cent increase anticipated.

UW Expert Defends DDT Use on Farms

MADISON (AP) — A ban on the use of the pesticide DDT in Wisconsin would cost state farmers between $2 million and $3 million a year, an entomologist told a Department of Natural Resources hearing Friday.

DDT is safe, economical and effective for many vegetable crops, said Prof. R. Keith Chapman, a member of the University of Wisconsin's insect control recommendation committee.

There is no satisfactory substitute for DDT, said Chapman, whose committee provides pesticide advice to farmers.

Chapman testified on behalf of DDT manufacturing firms fighting the proposed ban.

A ban on DDT, Chapman said, would have its most serious effect on carrot growers because they would have to compete with growers in states which permit DDT use.

He said DDT applications were needed to make growing celery, head lettuce, potatoes, beans and cabbage profitable.

A university geneticist, Frank Cherms, said he had not found any signs of thin eggshells being caused by DDT in experiments with birds.

288 Cases Processed

Waupaca Court Fines Hit $10,373 in April

WAUPACA — The municipal court of Waupaca had one of the busiest months in its history during April when it processed 288 cases and collected $10,373 in fines and forfeitures, fees for county and city oficers and justice fees for the City o Waupaca.

The Wisconsin State Patrol brought in 60 per cent of the cases with 172, and Judge George Whalen disposed of all but 10. Eight of these are pending, one bound over and one committed.

Conservation wardens brought 46 cases into the court, and all were fined but one, who was dismissed.

Traffic Charges

The Waupaca County patrol brought 40 cases before the court. Three of these are still pending and one has been committed.

The 13 cases tried for the City of Waupaca were tried, fines levied and one dismissed.

The sheriff's department brought 24 before the court, 10 of whom were tried and fined, two are pending, seven dismissed and five bound over.

Cases Settled

The City of Weyauwega, City of Manawa and Village of Iola brought 11 cases before Judge Whalen. Settled were four for Weyauwega, one dismissed and one found not guilty. A default judgment was rendered, one is pending and two settled for Manawa.

The distribution of fines, forfeitures and fees paid to Waupaca County, was: $4,800 for the State Patrol; $2,284 for the county patrol; $870 for the Conservation Department; $175 for the sheriff's department, $75 for Manawa and $50 for Weyauwega.

The City of Waupaca received $380 in forfeitures and officers fees. Justice fees earned for the city totaled $1,480.

Reform of City Government

A citizens committee's ideas to reform Appleton city government will test to full measure our aldermen's sense of responsibility.

For the aldermen have been asked to treat these ideas with open minds — all the while knowing that they might lose their jobs in the process.

At least half of the present aldermen would go under the reforms, which would reduce the size of the city council from 20 to 10.

In addition, five of the ten remaining aldermen would face election by city voters at large, rather than by just the voters in their own wards. That thought must make some of the present office-holders feel quite insecure.

Not only that, but the wards would be enlarged and completely redrawn, so that the five remaining aldermen who would be elected by ward voters would find themselves in strange territory. That too must be an uncomfortable feeling.

Yet, in the face of all this, a fair and thorough job of evaluation should be expected from the aldermen.

The report of the citizens committee raises very weighty questions about our local government, but it does not provide the complete answers. Little evidence is given to support its recommendations, and the extent of the citizens' research is not made clear.

Yet there is ample evidence in the report and in the recent history of Appleton that some changes may be needed in local government structure, especially as the community continues to grow.

City council committees will have to do a lot of investigating to understand all of the ways in which these drastic changes will affect city government. This investigation should be done. It will not be enough to dismiss these ideas for change because information is lacking.

The citizens committee has offered to meet with aldermen to provide more detail about the implications of their recommendations, and the council committees should take them up on the offer.

Possible Compromise on ABM

Although there continues to be speculation that the ABM proposal is really a bargaining device to be used in arms negotiations with the Russians, President Nixon seems to have made it clear that his Administration will wage an all-out struggle to get the Safeguard system approved by Congress. There may be some other Republicans seeking to find the means to avoid the showdown.

For one of the first times in American history, there is some doubt that a recommended defense system will gain Congressional approval. Senator Stuart Symington, one-time hawk but now opposed to the deployment of the Safeguard, claims that five to eight members of the Armed Services Committee are opposed and that in the Senate itself head counts show 48 or 49 opposed while only 42 appear assured to favor the plan. Charles Schultz, budget director under President Johnson, told a conference on "The Military Budget and the National Priorities" that "I have maybe a naive belief that the real problem with military budgets and military commitments is that the great majority of the American people will buy anything once it's wrapped in the flag and the joint chiefs say it's necessary for our security." But doubt about a variety of things about the Safeguard — the real motive in proposing the plan, the effectiveness of the Minutemen and the ABMs, a suspicion that once the ABM is deployed and we continue the also controversial testing of the MIRVs that we will have reached a point of no return in a fantastically expensive and dangerous new arms race with the Soviets — have at least caused some senators to have second thoughts. The matter of priorities is also involved — of what use is massive defense measures if the nation is crumbling from within? The opposite argument can also be used that all the saving forces within won't matter if we are subject to military defeat by the Communist world.

Some Republicans who wish to avoid the showdown on the ABM, both because they doubt the necessity for it and fear considerable damage to the Nixon prestige if it should be turned down, apparently are working in another direction. According to John Finney, writing in the New York Times, Senators Edward Brooke and Charles Percy are among those hoping for an agreement on a moratorium on the testing and deployment of all strategic and defensive weapons by both the United States and Russia while discussions on the limitations of arms go on.

Such a moratorium may be difficult to achieve. It was the Soviet Union which broke such an agreement in the testing of nuclear weapons in 1962, although concern over the testing also led to the nuclear test ban treaty which prohibits all but underground testing and which has not been broken. Detection of the continued deployment and construction of strategic and defensive weapons would be more difficult than detecting atmospheric nuclear tests. We'd have to trust the Russians, not an easy thing to justify in the light of past actions.

But the controversy points up again the necessity to get negotiations on arms limitations with the Soviet Union going as soon as possible.

Bowles' Advice to India

Retiring United States Ambassador to India Chester Bowles has been a consistent friend of India and supporter of economic aid to that country. The Indians should take to heart some comments he has made concerning their failures.

The Indians are "obsessed" with slogans, he says, and while all call themselves Socialists, the term means something different to many. This insistence upon socialism has led to a failure to encourage badly needed foreign private investment. It has meant resistance to establishing the development of petroleum and fertilizer plants with outside assistance, although India spends an average of $375 million on oil and fertilizer imports per year. Hundreds of millions of rupees are lost because of inadequate tax laws and lack of enforcement of those that exist. And the Indians have failed to follow the so-far highly successful land reform programs in Japan, Taiwan and South Korea which make it possible for small farmers to own small plots that produce enough for their needs and to sell some products as well. Instead in India, Mr. Bowles points out, land speculation is popular and the big farms make a lot of money — often insufficiently taxed — while the majority of Indian farmers live on subsistence plots.

India is a vast country with an almost unimaginable number of dialects, local customs, religious sects and prejudices. It will never be easy to govern and it is plagued with some highly unpublicized minor military skirmishes thousands of miles from New Delhi.

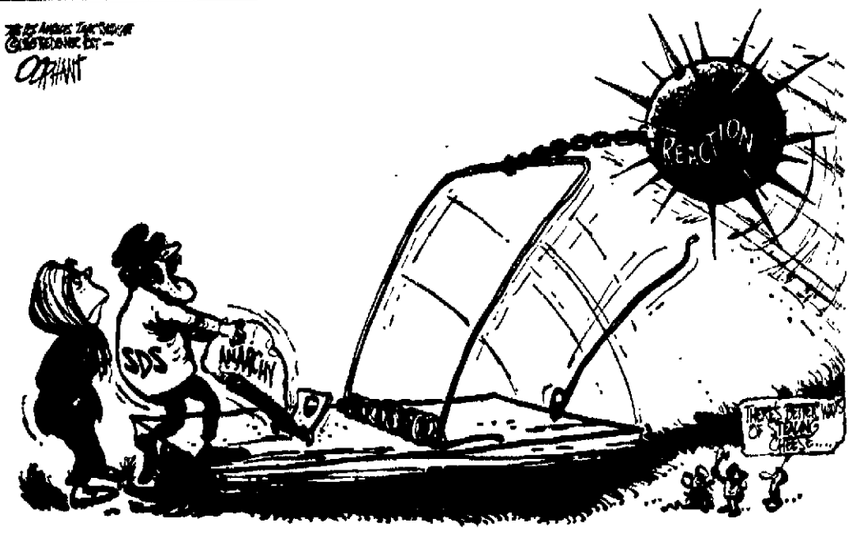

But it should continue to aim in the direction of a more egalitarian society and its avowals of socialist principles are not enough.

The Status of the Housewife

Most women seem to view housework as a necessary evil, a part of married life which is an endless circle of scrubbing floors, washing clothes and doing dishes. Modern appliances are hailed as freeing the fair sex from the serfdom of housework.

There are those women who feel that the home is too dull a place in this modern world and long for the advantages of being a bachelor girl they enjoyed before marriage. But there's one person in England who would disagree with such an attitude. She sued her husband for divorce because he had done all the cooking, cleaning and shopping for 13 years. The reason cited was that such action constituted cruelty, refusing her "the status of a normal housewife."

Undoubtedly the idea of a man doing the housework would be welcomed by some women. But we wonder if there isn't a commentary in this unusual incident on the fact that a woman by nature of her psychological makeup needs to run a home. Perhaps the idea is old-fashioned, but those critics who bewail the loss of family life in our society might consider the increasing absence of both parents from the home and the lessening of the parental roles. There is nothing demeaning about housework and there is something to be said for the identification with her home which it gives a woman. That identification is something increasingly missing in our modern families.

ABM Debate Is Becoming Bitter; Nixon Should Try Compromise

BY JOSEPH KRAFT

WASHINGTON — President Nixon can almost certainly win a Senate vote on the anti-ballistics missile, or ABM, without compromising in any way on the project he has put forward. But it would be a hollow victory — narrow, costly, and full of bitter feelings.

A compromise, on the other hand, would give the President a large majority for the legislation and the money he needs to begin deployment of the system this year. And it would avoid a murderous debate that is already poisoning the public mind and rocking the Administration even unto the fastness of the White House staff.

The reason the President can probably win without a compromise emerges from an analysis of the way the vote now lines up in the Senate. Careful counts made by anti-ABMers show 45 Senators solidly against ABM, 44 in favor, and 11 undecided.

NO POTENT LOBBY

But the 11 up for grabs come from less populated and developed states — Delaware, Alaska, Hawaii, and Idaho for example—where there is no potent lobby against the ABM. Politics in these states tends to center on government projects vital to local unions and companies. Local political leaders are usually closely identified with these projects. Thus these Senators can be picked off one by one through astute Presidential politicking.

Consider, for example, the case of Clinton Anderson, the venerable Democrat from New Mexico. He seems not to have made up his mind about ABM. But he long ago made up his mind about AEC — the Atomic Energy Commission.

The AEC spends about a quarter of its national budget in New Mexico. Its laboratories at Los Alamos and its administrative headquarters in Albuquerque are major employers, as is the Sandia Corporation of Albuquerque which does mainly AEC work. During the Johnson administration Senator Anderson kept quiet about Vietnam and got exceedingly favorable treatment of AEC projects. More jam for AEC could well tilt his view in favor of ABM.

Not so different in the case of Warren Magnuson, Democrat from Washington. Senator Magnuson is reported to be neutral about the ABM. But he cares lots about the SST, or supersonic transport.

Work on the SST is now being done by the Boeing Corporation, the biggest employer in Washington. Pressure to cut back the SST project for budgetary reasons is very strong in the Nixon administration. A reprieve for SST might well mean a favorable vote from Senator Magnuson on ABM.

But by moving down that path, the Administration could at best win by a few votes. A number of dubious projects would be locked into the budget more tightly than ever. A crop of bitter feelings would be sown — particularly among the younger, more idealistic Republican Senators apt to turn on the President later.

CASE OF REP. FORD

Worse still, there would probably go forward to the bitter end a debate that already threatens to become a national disgrace. Typical is the case of the House Republican leader, Gerald Ford, who is normally one of the most responsible men in the country on defense matters.

The other day Mr. Ford intimated that opponents of ABM were in "concert" with foes of the manned bomber and biological warfare programs to "unilaterally disarm the United States when we have a serious threat from the Soviet Union." If that keeps up we can any day now, expect Mr Ford to come out in favor of biological warfare.

As further witness to the confusion, the President has had to repudiate the judgment of his chief personnel man, Peter Flanigan, who felt that favoring ABM was a necessary requirement for the head of the National Science Foundation. And it even looks as though Bryce Harlow, the White House aide in charge of Congressional relations and the most experienced man on the Nixon staff, is being crowded on the ABM issue by an inner staff group centering around H.R. Haldeman.

Maybe the President thinks all that is just dandy — the stuff of victory. But if not, there is an obvious compromise available. It would involve, first, authorization for two sites — one in North Dakota and one in Montana — this year as part of a continuing research and development program; and second, review of the program and the need to continue it further by a specially-created Presidential board.

That kind of compromise would probably get about three-quarters of the Senate, including most leaders of the opposition. It would be more than a famous victory. It would be the sort of thing that separates statesmen from politicos.

Looking Backward

Appleton Prosperous, Beautiful

100 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for May 8, 1869.

Nature has done everything for Appleton.

The Lower Fox River Valley is unrivaled for picturesque scenery in all the West. Here we have the foaming, leaping waters of the Grand Chute rapids; the lofty river banks with level plateaus, diversified by great ravines which afford abundant drainage.

Stretching away in all directions is the rich agricultural region of the State, all tributary to this point. Yonder, huge forest trees, decked in living green, invite the wanderer to rest his weary feet, while from the river's banks, commingling with the roar of the waterfall, is heard the hum of machinery in factories and mills.

We are growing with giant strides. On this week in May, over a hundred new dwellings resound with click of hammer or buzz of saw, and other hundreds will rear their stately forms before the snow flakes come again.

25 YEARS AGO

Monday, May 1, 1944.

Alexander O. Benz, 803 S. Pierce Avenue, president of the Aid Association for Lutherans, announced that day that he was a candidate for the Progressive Party nomination for governor.

R. J. Treiber, Appleton jeweler, was re-elected president of the Wisconsin Retail Jewelers Association. A. W. Anderson, Neenah, was elected secretary of the state group.

Mrs. R. G. Whale and Mrs. John Pinkerton were elected co-officers of the Twin City Badminton Club. Other members were Mrs. Dedric Bergstrom, John Catlin, Will Cross, Mrs. Addison Davis, Fred Deutsch, Mr. and Mrs. Burt Fisher, Mrs. Donne Gosin, Ged Kuehmsted, Dorothy Wiberg, William Roberts, Mrs. John Schmerein, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schroeder, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Strange Jr., R. G. Whale, William Kellett, Mrs. Marion MacMillan, Roy Nash, John Pinkerton and Mr. and Mrs. R. Richard Probst.

10 YEARS AGO

Monday, May 4, 1959.

A pair of brothers and their wives won the championship in the Cigarette Couples Bowling League at Twelve Corners. They were Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Beyer and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Beyer. All were from Appleton.

Elwyn Krenke, route 2, Fremont, was elected vice president, and Mrs. Carl Jacobsen, route 2, Neenah, was chosen secretary of the Winnebago County 4-H Rural Drama Association. Serving for another year were Curtis Combs, route 5, Oshkosh, president, and Mrs. Dale Nolte, route 4, Oshkosh, treasurer.

Russell Brown was elected president of the Winneconne High School Student Council. He was to take office for the 1959-1960 school year.

Wisconsin Report

Vote on ORAP-200 Wasn't Conclusive, Survey Seems to Show

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — A nod of appreciation is probably owed to Prof. Clay Schoenfeld of the University of Wisconsin staff who enjoys a moonlighting enterprise in the form of published commentary on natural history and developments and problems in the field of natural resources conservation.

Recently, old friend Schoenfeld pondered the attitude of the people of Wisconsin on the question of an enlarged state recreational lands acquisition program, as shown in the referendum vote on the ORAP-200 question in the April elections.

He was disappointed, as he put it candidly, at the showing of doubt and hostility over much of the map of Wisconsin toward that effort in spite of the considerable campaign put on for it and the virtual absence of any organized campaign against it.

But there was consolation, he concluded, in the proof that in Southern Wisconsin "where the people are," the proposal carried.

CLOSER LOOK

Schoenfeld's comments persuaded this reporter that perhaps a closer examination of the referendum returns would be useful, as indeed, it has turned out to be. It was noted here earlier that the majority was a narrow one of under 40,000 votes.

In an ordinary Wisconsin election, as for governor, such a margin would be called a squeaker, and correctly. It may very well be that the "victory," as the boosters have called it, will be more costly than it was worth. As legislators examine the county by county returns, as they are surely doing, they may begin to wonder about the public acceptability of this highly-touted idea.

The major endorsements for more land buying and development for public recreational use, not surprisingly, came from crowded Milwaukee County and Dane County, which is the seat of the conservation program establishment. But the Milwaukee vote was not overwhelming, at about 77,000 for and 44,000 against.

The idea that "Southern Wisconsin" put over the campaign is not entirely correct, moreover. Rock County is as far south as Wisconsin extends, but it recorded a majority vote against the program, as did Green County next door. The margin of approving votes in liberal industrialized Kenosha County was also disappointingly thin, from the viewpoint of the portagonists.

WARNING SIGNS

More interesting are the returns from some of the districts in the state which have had most experience with the state's land program and where acquisition activity has been underway. In the Kettle Moraine district of Eastern Wisconsin, for example, there was a perceptible hostility shown in the referendum. It might be supposed that Waukesha County, a part of an urban complex, would respond to the allure of the outdoors recreational promise. But its voters answered nay, although by a slight margin.

As Prof Schoenfeld has correctly noted, the response in rural Wisconsin, and upper Wisconsin in particular, was generally negative, and resoundingly so in those areas where local officials and taxpayers have shown concern about the extent of state land acquisition and its erosion of the local tax base.

That probably surprises few persons. There is some fear among the commercial tourism proprietors about a tendency of state facilities to draw away their customers, on the one hand, and a lack of interest among local residents in the recreational issue in districts where open land is freely available to the local populations.

But now that it has been put on the record in a formal vote, legislators are bound to take notice and reflect. The consequences can only be speculated upon, but it seems plain that they may be disappointing to the boosters of the program. Some legislators may ask, indeed, whether the proposition could have carried even with its slight margin, except for its tandem relationship on the ballot to the far more popular proposal for accelerated water pollution control.

What Do Rat Tests Prove About Humans?

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A wry friend of mine, who is an inveterate smoker, once scornfully dismissed all those tests whereby laboratory mice and rats are made to puff on cigarets to "prove" carcinogenic qualities in nicotine.

"Sure, maybe those tame mice get cancer," he sneered, "but go out and show me a field-mouse who smokes and then maybe I'll believe the evidence."

He was being sardonic, but he had a point — and the point is larger than tests of cigaret-smoking. I was pleased to read in Time magazine not long ago that a University of Washington psychologist has finally broken with his smug colleagues on the human significance of laboratory lessons from the rat.

I have never understood what rats prove about people, especially the degenerate albino rat that is used in so much of this testing. It's about the same as taking a Roman galley-slave and testing him on radio navigation.

On the physiological level, there may be some vague association between rodents and humans, but a great deal of rat-work is done on the psychological level, where the results, conclusions and generalizations are even more dubious.

The psychology departments in most colleges and universities are infested (and controlled) by these rat-men, who believe in little but Stimulus-and-Response, and who reduce the complexity of the human mind to a simplistic formula that would insult the intelligence of a hamster.

There are some two billion neurons in one adult brain, and it has been estimated that a computer constructed on the same degree of complexity would have to be as large as the whole earth. Yet these rat-in-a-cage psychologists arrogantly imagine they can extrapolate human behavior and response from the way a pathetically retarded rat reacts.

It is largely this absurd notion that has soured college students on psychology courses — for even untrained kids are smart enough to know that the analogy between a rat and a human being is as vague and tenuous as an analogy between Dr. Freud and some miserable hack of a psychologist at Jerkwater A & M.

In the field of physics, researchers are humble enough to allow that their experiments on particles often change the mass or the position or the velocity of the particles they are testing. This is even truer when you deal with living objects, and it is fair to say that tests on laboratory rats not only tell us little about people, but even less about those rats smart enough to stay out of the clutches of heavy-handed psychologists.

Is U.S. Civil Defense a Waste?

Bare-Bones Fallout Shelters Comprise Most of System

By DICK BARNES

WASHINGTON (AP) — After two decades of planning and $1.6 billion in spending, the basic U.S. civil defense program is but a bare-bones string of fallout shelters.

If there were a nuclear attack today, millions of Americans would react by looking for one of these shelters. Finding one might be tough, though, because 2 out of every 5 don't have signs.

Those who did find a shelter would face 50-50 odds that it would be bare of civil defense provisions. Half the shelters have not been stocked with food and water.

There could be other difficulties, too. Managers have not been trained for many shelters. And, although it has financed 73 different shelter occupancy studies, the civil defense agency is yet to produce a handbook giving on-the-job guidance for the untrained.

Probe Ordered

Problems such as these, revealed by an Associated Press examination of the civil defense program, are due to come under scrutiny in a presidentially ordered study of the government's efforts to minimize American casualties in event of a nuclear war.

Six weeks ago, when President Nixon announced his decision to deploy an antiballistic missile system, he said he had instructed Gen George Lincoln, director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness, to make a fresh review of civil defense.

So far, the scope of the review has not been determined. "We hope it will be finished in six months to a year," said an OEP spokesman. "But you know how studies are."

When the ABM system was contemplated by the Johnson Administration, its role was to defend cities. Nixon, however, proposed placing ABM's around offensive missile sites in lightly populated areas. He told the nation that the cities could not in any event be defended against nuclear attack.

Nixon left open the question of what he will do about civil defense.

Waste of Time

Opponents contend the program is a waste of time and money because nuclear war won't come—and if it did, would be so devastating that civil defense wouldn't make any appreciable difference.

Supporters argue that civil defense activities should be increased now—that the program is an inexpensive way of saving lives in event of enemy attack.

Civil defense officials say their program provides a base for stepped-up training and shelter development should world tensions increase.

They point to their budget which, unlike those of most other government agencies, has declined in recent years. It peaked at $295 million in 1962, then began a steady descent to a $60.4 million appropriation for the current year.

The 1962 surge in spending followed the 1961 Berlin crisis and coincided with the Kennedy administration's reorganization of the civil defense program. Since that reorganization, the program's emphasis has been on establishing the network of fallout shelters.

Existing Buildings

The shelters are not special structures. They are simply areas in existing buildings or other facilities, such as tunnels, which offer some protection against radioactive fallout. They are not designed to protect against the blast itself.

Civil Defense Director Joseph Comm says the present shelter program, although "far from complete," could save "up to 15 million lives . . . that would otherwise be lost if an attack were to occur today."

"If the program approved for future years is not further delayed or deferred," he said, this lifesaving capability would be doubled by 1975."

According to civil defense statistics, 195,000 shelters with 185 million spaces have been located. That's almost one space for every American. But only 115,000 facilities with 115.7 million spaces have been formally licensed. And only 110,000 shelters have been marked with the familiar yellow and black fallout signs.

In addition, only 95,000 of the 195,000 shelters have been stocked by civil defense with canned water, nutritional biscuits, and medical and sanitation kits. These would supply 5.8 million people for the 14 days Civil Defense says is a likely length of stay in a shelter. Those 95,000 facilities, however, accommodate 92.7 million people—who could split the supplies and get along for eight days.

Poor Distribution

These shelters are not distributed in the same proportion as the population. Thus, although about 92 per cent of people supposedly would have a shelter space, it would not work out that way.

In Washington D.C., for example, there are nine times as many shelter spaces as residents. There are four times as many in Boston, three times as many in Pittsburgh and ten times as many in Miami Beach.

Less densely populated areas don't fare as well. In Ohio's smaller cities and rural areas, for instance, the average is only one shelter space for every four people.

To overcome this maldistribution, the major chain of fallout shelters, each designed to accommodate 50 or more persons, is being augmented slightly by two other sets of shelter spaces.

One survey is hunting for spaces in groups of less than 50. The other is analyzing shelter capacities of family homes.

Civil defense officials say 74 per cent of surveyed home owners responded to their questionnaire. The survey so far has turned up 496,000 houses acceptable as shelters and 8.1 million more which could be made acceptable with modest improvements. However, of the owners of the 8.1 million houses, only 153,000—less than 2 per cent—have written for plans on how to upgrade their protection.

What would happen inside the shelters after an attack has been the subject of research for nearly a decade, including the 73 studies covering 22,000 man-days of volunteer shelter confinement.

Could Get By

Dr. J. O. Buchanan, Civil Defense's deputy assistant director for research, gives a flat "yes" when asked if the research shows that people could get by in a fallout shelter.

But living in a shelter is no simple task. For example, management of the facilities, most of which hold 3,000 or more persons, is fraught with problems.

Civil Defense's "Shelter Management Textbook" stresses pre-crisis training, saying, "should war come, the shelter manager will represent . . . the key to survival for an important segment of the population."

"The survival capability of any shelter can be increased dramatically by plans made and actions taken prior to shelter occupancy," adds the textbook used in teaching the 112,000 persons who, Civil Defense says, have taken the 16-hour shelter manager course.

Civil defense headquarters says it does not know how many buildings have a specific shelter manager assigned to them. It said such assignment is a local civil defense function.

The program's emphasis on pre-crisis training of shelter managers is questioned by researchers at the University of Georgia who, after a dozen government-financed studies, reported that "community shelter occupants are for the most part capable of self-management, without the benefit of trained management, having but a handbook as an organizational guide."

These researchers have attempted to develop such a handbook. It has gone through numerous revisions but is not yet ready for stocking in shelters.

Researchers say they have been unable to create in their tests the psychological environment that would exist in time of nuclear attack.

"We can't develop enough stress," says Buchanan. Added research project officer Fred Carr: "The volunteer knows no one is going to put him in a hazardous situation with government money."

Nonetheless, one government-financed study told of how a man who had evolved into the shelter leader had to be coaxed out of the shelter after six days. He had become convinced he was actually being subjected to radiation and had taken to arming himself with a large screwdriver.

Action Along Border

Syria Ready to Test Strength of Israel

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syria is beginning to shoot at Israel after almost two years of sitting on the sidelines of the Middle East conflict.

But at the same time, in a paradox typical of the ruling Baath party, the government of President Noureddin Atassi is showing increasing interest in a political settlement of the Arab-Israeli war.

Since the six-day war of 1967, Syria has taken pains to sound more extremist than other Arab countries. It repeatedly called for a "war of popular liberation" against Israel but did nothing afterward.

Syria's cease-fire line with Israel along the Golan Heights—at its nearest point about 28 miles from Damascus—has been embarrassingly quiet compared to the Jordan River or the Suez Canal. But political sources say this is changing.

Several Clashes

There have been six clashes with Israel in the past 12 days involving machine guns, mortars and artillery. More can be expected, informants say.

Several fuses have set the Syrian cannons booming.

"Al Fatah guerrillas and the Israeli air attack of last February are the two main reasons why you can expect more action along the border," one informant said. "The government used to prevent the guerrillas from operating against Israel from Syrian territory for fear of Israeli reprisals. But the Israelis bombed Syrian territory anyway.

"Al Fatah quietly began setting up a large operations base on the Syrian side of the cease-fire line. About six weeks ago it pointed out to the government that it was rather shameful that Syria should put curbs on them while other countries such as Jordan were giving them free rein."

The Syrians claim to have shot down four Israeli planes in the February strife. Initially this was doubted, but independent observers have since confirmed that three Israeli planes went down in flames.

Willing to Test Israel

Syria's armed forces, refurbished by the Soviet Union since the 1967 defeat, are feeling more feisty, and the army is now willing to test its strength against the Israelis, the informants added.

Restrictions on guerrilla operations also have been removed, and it is widely known the six recent clashes were sparked by guerrilla raids into Israeli-occupied territory. One Israeli soldier was killed and another was wounded in the most recent raid Friday, sources here say.

February's air raid, besides giving the army new confidence, also sparked a severe political crisis within the Baath party that partly relaxed the regime's iron-fisted rule. Since the shakeup began, about 120 political prisoners have been released, arbitrary arrests of political opponents abolished and a new constitution proclaimed.

A constituent assembly is to be formed within four months, although it is expected to be merely a rubber stamp body.

The regime's reforms have improved its popularity at home and with other Arab governments. But there is still a certain coolness between Damascus and Moscow because the Syrians have rejected the idea of a political settlement despite Soviet urgings to fall in line with Jordan and Egypt.

Informants said the Soviets have not been keeping their Syrian clients informed of developments at the Big Four talks in New York.

"The Syrians are very intrigued about what is going on there," one source commented. "The Egyptians are not telling them anything about it either."

Although hope of a negotiated settlement is growing dimmer every day, it is still a possibility. The Syrian government does not want to be out on a limb in case it does come about, the source added.

Nixon Continuing to Press Food Aids Project Now Behind Schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) — An $8.8 million federal program aimed at improving diets for nearly a quarter-million impoverished mothers and children is far behind schedule and 50 per cent below the target.

The program's intent is to supply a $7.00 package of nutrients—iron-enriched cereal, fruit juice, canned meat—each month to malnourished families.

But, after six months, the program has reached less than 100,000 of the target figure of 225,000 mothers and children.

Little Cooperation

However, the Nixon administration will continue to press the project which was initiated by the Johnson administration, along with other federal food programs, say Agriculture Department officials. The administration has asked for $15 million increase in the department's food program budget overall.

The problem centers on poor federal-local cooperation and little local awareness of what all department programs can and should do, spokesmen say. Without cooperation, little can be done, they add.

The Department hopes to cure some of the trouble with an educational campaign among labor unions, churches, business groups and universities.

"Many states are developing plans aimed at operating the program," says Neill Freeman, the department's director of commodity distribution.

"But there is no question that there will need to be a concentrated education campaign—which is needed for all food programs."

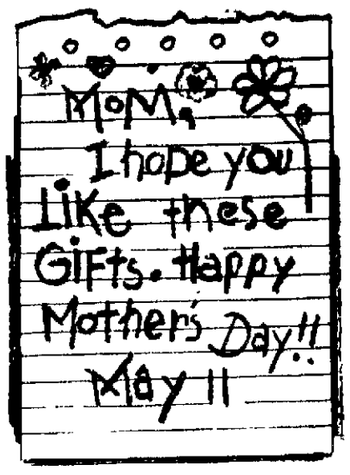

Freeman said it is expected the department will make its original target for the special food packages sometime later this year. In 1970 the program is intended to reach a million mothers, infants and children up to the age of six years. The cost estimate for this level is $140 million a year.

Much Enthusiasm

"The enthusiasm is there," Freeman says. But it's only in places like the district (Washington, D.C.) which have some uncommitted resources available that makes it possible to get moving."

The program was limping along in Washington until mid-April when a Senate committee under Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., took to the city to probe hunger conditions.

Only 20,465 persons were receiving the special packages but the project was immediately expanded to include 45,000 after the investigation.

Appleton Revises Annexation Lines

First Assumption of Grand Chute Territory Voided for 'Islands'

Boundary lines have been redrawn to pave the way for the city of Appleton to again institute annexation action to bring a large tract in the Town of Grand Chute into the city.

A previous annexation by the city was voided last week by a Circuit Court decision, which held that four town residences had been bypassed so as to create a "town island" within the city.

Start on Wednesday

City officials said Friday 130 acres north of the city were involved in the first annexation attempt, but believed the acreage would be increased with the second.

At least one other property owner, who had not been previously involved in the annexation, is reported to have contacted the city and reportedly wants to join in the latest action, which will get a send-off Wednesday night by the city council.

The latest town land owner to become involved was not identified by city officials, who said the next annexation would be accomplished through passage of a direct ordinance and petition from property owners.

The direct annexation will comprise the 95-acre tract the city owns north of Northland Avenue and west of Ballard Road, purchased in the early 1960s for future school sites, park development and possible industrial activity.

Langedyke Farm

The 95 acres, commonly known as the Langedyke farm, should be in the city by the end of May, according to City Atty David Geenen, who prepared the ordinance

"What we are attempting to do is legal," Geenen said. "It is another statutory procedure."

Owners of property, amounting to more than 30 acres and located on Northland east of Ballard Road, are expected to initiate annexation of their property through petition, Geenen reported. They were identified as the Appleton Labor Temple and Marcus Enterprises, Inc.

The city council's welfare-ordinance committee was told of the city's latest plans when it held its regular meeting this week and authorized preparation of the annexation ordinance.

City-Owned Land

Mayor George Buckley said the city will not be deterred from taking in land which it owns.

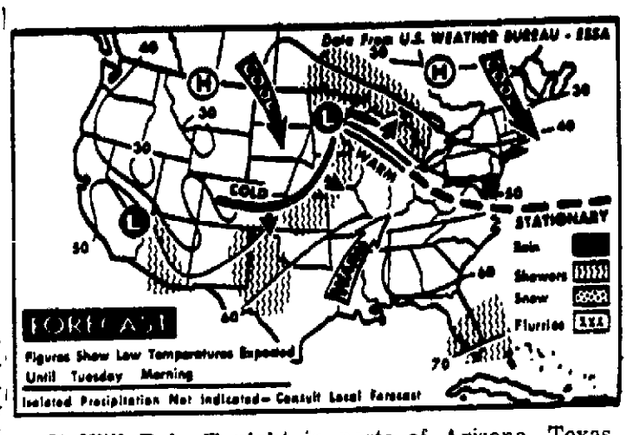

Under the revised boundary lines, it was learned, the city will have at least one "city island" within its confines.

In another development, Geenen disclosed he has prepared another direct annexation ordinance "to cover the city" on the pumping station being built along the shore of Lake Winnebago in the Town of Harrison.

Because the Appleton Water Utility, which pays taxes to the city, will own the station and new Lake Winnebago pipeline — it was decided to annex to avoid the possibility of the utility ever having to pay taxes to the Town of Harrison.

The ordinance also will be presented to the council next week.

City Planner Jack Hetu said the city plan commission has approved the latest annexation proposals, another legal requirement.

They said the market probably "will continue upward over the short-term, although it may pause now and again to consolidate."

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .6 at 339.6, with industrials up 1.0, rails up .1, and utilities up .5.

Steels, motors, rubber issues, and electronics all generally were higher. Aircrafts were mostly lower. Utilities were mixed.

Ten of the 20 most-active issues on the New York Stock Exchange were lower, 9 higher, and 1 unchanged.

U.S. Plywood-Champion, in which a 100,000-share block was traded, was the most-active issue, off ¼ at 75

British Petroleum led the active list on the American Stock Exchange, where 16 of the 20 most-active were higher, and 4 were lower. British Petroleum was up ⅜s at 19.

Jan Rubes Soloist

Symphony's Year Ends With Excellent Concert

BY JAMES AUER
Post-Crescent Sunday Editor

If the Fox Valley Symphony Orchestra continues to improve at this rate, conductor Istvan Jaray is going to have to start working up an encore.

The lack of the latter was, in fact, the only serious fault in Sunday night's concert, last of the 1968-69 season at the Lawrence University Memorial Chapel.

Despite a rather disquieting abundance of empty chairs, the orchestra, with Jaray firmly in control, provided an attentive and, on occasion enthusiastically appreciative audience with a well-programmed and consistently enjoyable evening of music and laughter.

The laughter, in this instance, was inspired by the thoroughly professional solo performance of Canadian basso Jan Rubes, in the role of the vain and posturing music master in Domenico Cimaros's two-act intermezzo, "Il Maestro di Capella".

Rubes, who will be returning to the Valley next season when the Canadian Opera Company presents "The Barber of Seville" for the Neenah-Menasha Community Concert Association, extracted the last drop of humor and melody out of Cimarosa's 18th Century mini-opera, which must surely have been superior to most of the maxi-operas with which it was presented.

With hair flying and baton waving, Rubes, an accomplished actor as well as singer, evoked ripples of hilarity as he admonished the audience to pay attention, harangued the orchestra to work harder—and, in the process, lost his chance to complete his aria. The intermezzo not only provided a welcome change from symphonic formats of the past, but served as a notable showcase for a gifted artist.

The symphony's own offerings were impressive as well. Opening the program with a well-executed, if occasionally uneven, rendition of Carl Maria von Weber's Overture to "Oberon", Jaray went on to present Carl Nielsen's "Little Suite for Strings", an altogether charming work filled with the verve and lyricism of youth (the composer was 23 when it was written)

Following Rubes' tour de force, the symphony essayed its major task of the evening, Ludwig von Beethoven's towering Symphony o. 5 in C Minor, Opus 67. Perhaps the greatest, and certainly one of the more frequently-performed scores in th current repertoire, Beethoven's Fifth is a challenge for any orchestra, if only because virtually every member of the audience has his own favorite performance by a major conductor.

Despite the magnitude of its assignment, the symphony, attacked the complexities of Beethoven's master work with virility and confidence

Along the way—despite occasional fluctuations of quality—it achieved a sound superior to any this reviewer has heard the local musicians produce to date. It was, in sum, a most impressive achievement, both for the members of the orchestra and for their youthful conductor.

One's only regret is that so many of the orchestra's regular patrons and season ticket holders were unable, for one reason or another, to attend this climactic concert of the 1968-69 season. For shame, for shame!

Youth Gets 3 Years for $6 Hashish Sale

Ex-College Student Sentenced to Term In Reformatory

The sale of $6 worth of hashish to an Appleton Police Department informant on Feb. 10 cost an 18-year-old Adell, Wis., youth three years in the State Reformatory at Green Bay this morning.

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer imposed the sentence on Daniel Schowalter, a former college student who lived in Appleton until early this year.

Schowalter had pleaded innocent of selling hashish to a person under 21 and to a charge of delivering a dangerous drug without a prescription.

He changed his plea to no contest on the hashish charge and was found guilty on April 17, and the second charge was dropped on a motion by the district attorney's office.

Schaefer, on April 17, asked for a pre-sentence investigation for Schowalter, and ordered him held in jail without bond.

The 18-year-old police narcotics informant said he paid Schowalter $6 for a small amount of hashish on Feb. 10 at the Adell youth's former address, 210 S. Rankin Street.

OFF WISCONSIN STREETS and HIGHWAYS!!!

Special interests are pushing legislation that would permit 65-foot double-bottom truck trains on four-lane streets and highways . . . and up to 900 yards on designated intersection narrower roads.

This legislation opens the door to 65-foot behemoths on all highways . . . and to even longer giants in the future. (Triple-bottom trucks 105 feet long already are running in some states).

Official accident reports indicate that proportionately nearly twice as many motorists died in collisions with double-bottom truck trains as in collisions with regular semi-trailer trucks.

Can progress be equated with human lives?

65-FT. DOUBLE-BOTTOM TRUCKS ARE UNSAFE AND DANGEROUS!

- Longer and More Difficult to Pass (Especially dangerous in rain or snow).
- Need More Room to Stop (18% more than regular semi-trailers).
- Hard to Control on Slippery Roads or in Windy Weather (Even some truck drivers testify to this).

Kaukauna Prom-Goers Dance in Japanese Setting

Gary Effa was king; Karen Van Vreede, queen.

Committee chairmen for the event were Tim Alger, Carol Becker, Kelly Derus, Julie Glandt, Janie Gustman, Tom Haas, Barb Hopfensperger, Barb Lamers, Carmen Manderscheid, Paula Micholic, Kay Minkebige, Sally Stuyvenberg, Charlie Thiel, Karen Vaubel, Ina Weber and Sharon Wynboom.

Theme of the Prom was "The Land of the Rising Sun," and Jim Mulry and Kelly Derus pause between dance sets with Sue Bordini and James Rostello, to admire the decorations.

Mother Dedicates Days To Welfare of Family

If days can be officially dedicated to such things as eating sauerkraut and promoting Indian war dances, why can't mom dedicate certain days of the year to promoting home safety and family health?

Here are some ideas for mom's own calendar of home safety events, suggested by the Council on Family Health, a nonprofit organization sponsored as a public service by leading members of the drug industry to promote home safety and family health.

Right now Official accident prevention discussion time for the entire family. Everyone is instructed to pick up clutter, wipe up wet spots, use care in climbing for highly placed objects, keep an eye on household chemicals and medicines being used and put them away immediately after use. Be cautious when working at the stove and using kitchen utensils or household repair tools. Put youngsters in a safe play area, (playpen or crib) when adults are occupied in another room.

Seasonal Checks

At the beginning of each new season: Official medicine cabinet cleanup. Put contents in proper order — external medicines on one shelf; internal medicines on another. Toiletries should be stored apart from medicines and on lower shelves. Discard medicines left over from previous illness. Throw away containers without labels, or with unreadable labels. Check light over medicine cabinet to see if it is bright enough to read labels easily.

Before 15th of May: Official check of family health for vacation period. Plan for safety during vacation, whether taking a trip or remaining at home. Arrange for physial checkups, including immunization booster shots, prescription renewals, and anything that should be discussed with the family doctor prior to the hot weather season.

First weeks in June and December: Official fire prevention check of the home. Check electrical appliances for frayed cords, faulty wiring, possible current leakage. Check outlets for overloading. Confer with family on details of escape route in event of fire and check-in point outside of house so each member may be accounted for. Discard accumulated rubbish from basements and attics.

Alertness is Key

Last week in August: Back-to-school preparations. These should include an up-to-date child supervision plan for safety of pre-school youngsters. Check social engagements and other possible reasons you may have to leave the house. Prepare a list and telephone numbers of sitters — relatives, friends, neighbors, your own teen - age children — who may be counted on to supervise small children in your absence Arrange so that at no time are youngsters unsupervised, even if you go only next door for a cup of coffee. Accidents have a habit of happening when children are alone in the house.

Mom's own calendar of events is, like the professional calendars, just a reminder of special subjects for special attention. The prevention of accidents in the home is an everyday subject, says the council. Nearly 30,000 deaths, and more than four million disabling injuries per year because of accidents in the home, are good reasons for constant alertness for the whole family.

Alice in Boy Land

AP Wirephoto

Alice De Rivera

By BROOKS JACKSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Blue-eyed Alice de Rivera, a 13-year-old high school freshman, is going to have 3,500 boys for her classmates next fall.

The Board of Education, after fighting in the courts for three months to keep her out, has finally decided to let Alice enter all-male Stuyvesant High School in September.

Won't Afect Dress

Stuyvesant is one of the city's schools for brainy students and is about one hour closer to her Brooklyn home than the nearest such coeducational school.

Alice said she doesn't think Stuyvesant's 3,500 boys will affect her studies—she's an A student—or her dress.

"I'll wear the same clothes I always do — minis and slacks," said the 5-foot-5, 105-pound lass. Friday she wore sandals and bell-bottomed slacks, and her waist-length hair fell back over her beige safari shirt.

Alice, whose voice seems barely louder than a whisper, said at a news conference she wanted to see the court fight she started last January carried out until all the city's one-sex schools are made coeducational. The city has 10 all-girl high schools, and Alice's entry to Stuyvesant will make the all-boy total 18.

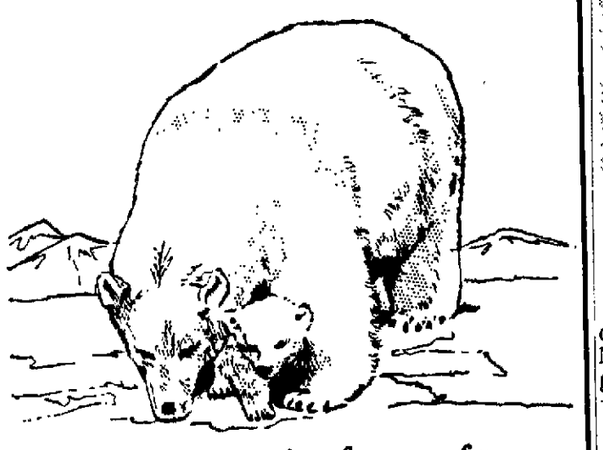

Claims Unconstitutional

The National Emergency Civil Liberties Committee thinks one-sex schools are unconstitutional, and thinks it can prove it in court. It had planned to present arguments to that effect at a State Supreme Court hearing on Alice's case May 13, but the board meanwhile decided to admit her without a court order.

But one thing about the school will remain male-oriented for at least another year. That's the gymnasium. Alice won't be permitted to take gym courses until some sort of shower arrangement can be worked out.

Your Problems

Ann Says, 'Organize Political Opposition'

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been writing this letter in my head for seven years. Finally I decided to put it down on paper. My problem is neighbors. Before I go further I'd like to make it clear that they are horses, not people.

We live in a town in Pennsylvania — population 30,000 and going backwards. The horses belong to a two-bit politician. They are fenced in a very small area, smell terrible, draw flies and don't do anything for the landscape.

The horses breed now and then and all this goes on two blocks from the post office, right in the heart of town. During breeding season the movie houses don't do any business. Everybody comes downtown to watch.

We've complained to the board of health, the Humane Society, the mayor and the police, but nobody does anything because the mayor runs everything including the city council. What do you suggest? — Pennsylvania Problem

Dear Penn: Organize some political opposition and turn the rascals out to pasture. With them will go the horses.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Three years ago I went to work as a legal secretary. The wife of one of lawyers started to call me on the phone, "just to chat." I was flattered and pleased — until the calls began to come every day and last for nearly an hour.

I became upset when Mrs X started to call me at home, asking all sorts of questions about the office. Soon I caught on to what should have been obvious earlier. Mrs. X was a kitchen drinker.

One week she called me every single night and cried for a solid hour about her husband's abusive treatment. Then she got to talking about her "vicious" neighbors and their plot to make her move. When she told me they had her house bugged, I knew she was not only drunk but crazy. After several months of these interminable calls, I felt myself going to pieces. I had to quit my job and leave town.

Eight months have passed but that loony woman still calls every week. She is always bombed and doesn't care what time it is. I've lost many a night's sleep and am sick to death of her. What's the answer? — Sacramento

Dear Sac: The answer is an unlisted telephone number. The fact that you didn't think of this yourself raises some questions about your need to suffer. Have you seen a doctor? If not, I strongly recommend it.

Dear Ann Landers: The girls my fiancee works with (25 of them) are giving a bridal shower for her. The party will be at the home of her maid of honor.

Bey wants me to come in about 10:30 p.m., when they start to serve the coffee and cake. She says all I have to do is say "hello." Ann, I'd rather walk into the lion cage at Lincoln Park Zoo.

I've asked around the shop and not a single guy here has ever had to do anything like this. Please give some advice fast — Squirming

Dear S: Your girl wants to show you off, Lovey — so be a good sport and make her happy. It'll only take a few minutes and the agony will be over before you know it.

How to Cut Daily Food Bills

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Q. Which is the bigger bargain: $1.59 for a box of powder to make 20 quarts of nonfat dry milk or $1.09 for a box to make 12 quarts of the same brand of dry milk?

A. The 20-quart package works out to 8 cents a quart and is therefore a bigger bargain than the 12-quart package which works out to 9 cents a quart.

Q. Which is cheaper: a 1 lb. 2 oz. jar of peanut butter costing 53 cents or a 12 oz. jar of the same brand costing 35 cents?

A. Neither. In both cases, the per pound cost is 47 cents.

Q. Which is more economical: a 1 lb. 14 oz. can of sliced pineapple costing 47 cents or an 8½ oz. can costing 21 cents?

A. The larger can—by far. Here, the pineapple costs 25 cents a pound in the larger can, but 40 cents a pound in the small can.

These illustrations, collected by Dr. Heinz B. Biesdorf of Cornell University' College of Home Economics, underline the extent to which you, the manager of the family pocketbook, are expected to be mathematically hep in today's marketplace.

At the same time, the comparisons indicate the enormous savings which you can achieve by buying large vs. small packages.

High Average Saving

You don't have to be a mathematical genius to figure out, just from these few examples, that if you could buy on a price per pound or per ounce or per pint or per quart basis, you could save hundreds of dollars per year—without necessarily sacrificing any quality in the items. According to one survey, savings on large sizes of package goods over small sizes average 17 per cent.

But there are infuriating exceptions. In another recent study of one major dry detergent, the per ounce cost of the largest available size (over 16 pounds) was significantly GREATER than the cost of either of the next two smaller sizes.

Pressure is mounting for new amendments to the Federal "Truth In Packaging" law to require retailers to stamp every package with a price per unit as well as with the total price for the package. But of course, no amendment so sweeping as this is likely to move quickly through Congress. So in the meantime, here's a condensed version of a new "Cost Weight Table" drawn up by Biesdorf's group at Cornell.

Unit Cost Table

To calculate the unit cost of a product irrespective of the particular package it comes in, first locate the weight of the package in the left-hand column. Then locate the price of one package at the upper right side of the table (because of space limitations, only 10, 20, 30 and 40 cents are given in this sample table). The unit cost (price per pound) will be found in the appropriate right hand column. By comparing the unit cost of one package size with another, you select the actual bargain.

If a package weighs (in ounces):	And the cost per package is:	10c	20c	30c	40c
1	Then the	$1.60	$3.20	$4.80	$6.40
2	cost per	.80	1.60	2.40	3.20
3	pound is:	.53	1.07	1.60	2.13
4		.40	.80	1.20	1.60
5		.32	.64	.96	1.28
6		.27	.53	.80	1.07
7		.23	.46	.69	.91
8		.20	.40	.60	.80
9		.18	.36	.53	.71
10		.16	.32	.48	.64
11		.15	.29	.44	.58
12		.13	.27	.40	.53
13		.12	.25	.37	.49
14		.11	.23	.34	.46
15		.11	.21	.32	.43
16		.10	.20	.30	.40

With the cost of living running 5.1 per cent ahead of this time a year ago and the cost of food alone up 3.8 per cent, a table such as this can be translated into extraordinary savings on your marketbasket. Clip it and refer to when you shop from now on.

Reaction of Opponent Is Human

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Much as you may hate to admit it, your bridge opponents are members of the human race If you must guess what an opponent is doing, put yourself in his place and judge his action by what you would do if you held his cards

When today's hand was played in a match in Johannesburg, declarer took the ace of spades drew two rounds of trumps and ruffed dummy's low spade He then led the quen of diamonds and then another diamond when East refused the first diamond

East took the ace of diamonds and returned the deuce of hearts South's contract now depended on guessing whether East held the ace or the queen of harts

After much hemming and hawing South played his low heart West won with the queen of hearts and returned a heart to the ace Down one

We can see that South made the losing play, but it's not instructive to let it go at that South should work out the winning play because he knew that East was a good player

In East's Place

South must put himself in East's place East knows that South started with six clubs and one spade and must therefore have six red cards When South gets through with his four diamonds he will still have two hearts left

If East's hearts were headed by the queen he would get out with a diamond and wait for South to play the hearts by himself. This would defeat the contract if West's hearts were headed by A-10 and East's by the queen

Since East led a heart instead of returning a safe diamond East's hearts cannot be headed by the queen South's only chance is that East has the ace of hearts, and South must therefore step up with the king of hearts
